

Rockingham County Library Gives Doll Party For Children Of Community

Walter Gardner, photographer for the Fieldcrest Mill Whistle, snapped this shot of an unusual scene on Tuesday following Christmas when the Rockingham County Library gave a doll party for the children of the community. Dolls were guests of honor and were displayed, admired, and introduced to one another.

Miss Marianne Martin, librarian, conducted the program which featured stories about famous dolls and discussions of books about dolls. Miss Martin was assisted by Miss Sunshine Murphy. The library had arranged an exhibit of dolls from various countries. Games were played and music from the library's new record player was enjoyed.

Useful Books For Ambitious Workers (Available At Library)

"When Foreman and Steward Bargain" by Glenn Gardiner. The author in a brief foreword says in part, "The book is written primarily for foremen who sincerely desire to develop and maintain successful relations with union stewards....The most important phase of collective bargaining is carried on in the day-to-day relations between foremen and stewards. That is where good labor relations must begin."

"Foreman's Handbook" edited by Carl Heyel. Contains chapters on Planning and Scheduling; Quality Control and Waste Reduction; Industrial Fatigue; Merit Rating of Employees; etc.

"How To Supervise People" by Alfred M. Cooper. According to Carl Heyel, who reviewed the book for the Magazine Management Review, this volume is a "must" for upper executives, foremen, supervisors, and ambitious employees.

"Foremanship Fundamentals" by A. L. Kress. "In this book will be found an able and constructive analysis of the functions of the foremen and the variety of problems he may encounter in discharging his responsibilities, with a clear outline of appropriate methods for dealing with them," says C. G. Stoll in the Foreword to this volume.
