Home Economics Teachers Visit Karastan Mill

Crown Of Thorns

Rev. J. K. McConnell, Industrial Chaplain at Fieldcrest Mills, is shown with a crown of thorns which he received just before Easter from Dr. George Penn Dillard, Jr., in Bethlehem.

An accompanying note read: "Crown of thorns similar to the one our Lord wore, sent in memory of His suffering... 'Who His Own self bare our sins in His own body.' 1 Peter, 2:24."

Dr. Dillard, a Draper native, is chief of staff at Berachah Tuberculosis sanatorium. He and his family have been in Bethlehem since August 1952 and plan to remain three years.

New Weatherproofing

Weatherproof Coating—A weatherproof coating has come onto the market that can be sprayed on roofs and other parts of the house, making them completely resistant to abrasion, fumes and fire.

The word "companion" is derived from com, the Latin word for "together," and "panis," Latin for bread. In other words, companions are those who have eaten bread together.

Five Generations of Fieldale Family

Eugene Morrison; her daughter, Mrs. Vivian Ramsey, and her daughter, little Linda Ramsey. Mrs. Morrison is a seamer at the Hosiery Mill.
