

Salute To The Girl Scouts

Adults worry about preparing children for what lies ahead in this changing and increasingly complex world. Though benefiting from scientific advancements, today's children face unprecedented economic pressures and upheavals, readjustments to changing social patterns, international tensions, and threats to human survival.

Home, schools, and religious institutions help youngsters cope with these multitudinous pressures. So do the youth organizations of this country.

Outstanding among these is the Girl Scout movement, a partnership of girls and adults which helps girls build a sturdy base for future life.

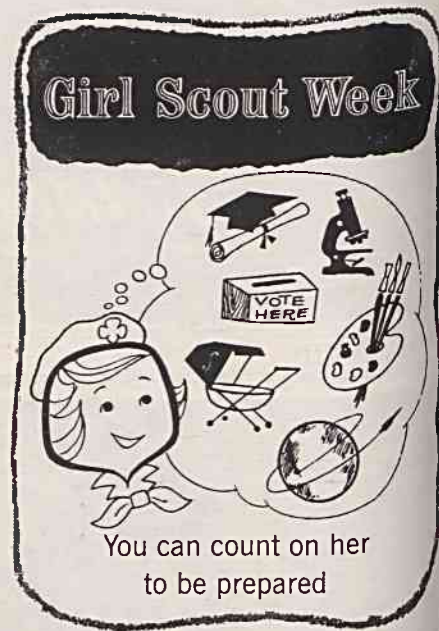

For 48 years, Girl Scouting has provided an ethical code of conduct, a sound sense of values, training for good citizenship, and opportunities for service. Today, more than two and a half million girls from the age of seven through 17 are learning and living these same lessons under the guidance of almost 800,000 dedicated adults.

Girl Scouts take part in a broad range of activities which prepare them for future responsibilities as wives, mothers, workers, civic leaders, and citizens. Whatever changes are wrought in the atomic age, basic values of self-respect, loyalty, reverence, and love of fellow-man have the best chance of surviving among those who have had the kind of training which Scouting offers.

With these standards—the natural outgrowth of a belief in their Promise and Laws—Girl Scouts will be better prepared to play constructive roles in the world of tomorrow.

Fieldcresters help support the local Girl Scout program through their contributions to the Tri-City Community Fund.

The Mill Whistle congratulates the 375 Brownies, Scouts and leaders of the Tri-City Girl Scouts who this week are helping celebrate the 48th anniversary of the founding of the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

THE MILL WHISTLE

On The Job At Fieldcrest

Lucy H. Eanes has worked as a folder in the Sewing Department at the Towel Mill for over 25 years. Those who know her best describe her as a person who takes pride in doing good work and who can be counted on to be on the job every working day.

Mrs. Eanes receives the towels after the labels are sewn on. She folds them in one dozen lots. She makes a neat fold and is careful to keep the edges straight. This enables the wrapper, in the next operation, to make an attractive package.

Long experience and a cooperative attitude make Mrs. Eanes a skillful and dependable employee, capable of turning out high production of good quality work.

Towel Mill Lists Its Top Weavers, Fixers

Listed below are the Towel Mill's "top" quality weavers and loomfixers for the most recent periods of record.

The "Weavers of the Week" are those with the lowest per cent of seconds in relation to the standards for the various loom groups.

The top loomfixers are determined through a combination of low seconds and high loom efficiency on the sections for which they are responsible.

In addition to being published in The Mill Whistle, names of the leading operators are posted weekly on the weave room bulletin board.

In Gratitude

I would like to express my appreciation to my friends and neighbors for the beautiful cards, flowers and gifts I received while I was a patient in Tri-City Hospital.
