

Day Is 'Visitor's Day' At Fieldcrest

Day is "visitor's day" at Fieldcrest. In any one day, visitors come from all over the world, from mills, offices and homes.

They are customers, teachers, having business with the company. Some are government officials and others are students.

Groups from high schools and colleges tour the plant, see the practical work being done and others are interested in the plant as a modern textile mill.

After the tour and following the presentation of the groups, the students have toured the plant of Fieldcrest.

During Averett students' visit to Karastan, Elizabeth Parrish answers questions about setting operations for interested trio.

In Burling Department. Barbara Jones, inspector and burler, discusses fine point with another group.

In Burling Department, Bonnie Moore (left) and Annie Bell Paschal pause to watch skillful hands of Mattie Merriman.

MOREHEAD HIGH SCHOOL COMMERCIAL SENIORS visit the General Offices. Here, Clarence Martin shows engineering drawing to group.

Explains purchasing procedures for students. Agent, and Jean Knight, a guide.

Robert L. Moore, employment manager, explains Fieldcrest's employment procedures to Gale Washburn (left) and Linda Carter Travis.