

New Scholarship Recipients Visit Parents' Mills

In Finishing Department at Karastan Mill, Harry L. Martin shows rugs to his daughter, Elizabeth Frances, who was granted a Fieldcrest Scholarship. At right are Mrs. Martin and Jones W. Norman, industrial relations representative for the Bedsread and Karastan Mills.

The three newest recipients of Fieldcrest Scholarships recently made visits to the mills where their parents are employed to see the plants and to meet officials of the mills.

Those receiving scholarships, given by Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., through the Fieldcrest Foundation, were Elizabeth Frances Martin, Richard Ray Watkins, and Mary Jane Lawless.

Miss Martin is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Martin. Her father is an inspector in the Finishing Department at the Karastan Mill.

Richard Watkins is the son of Thomas and Daisy Watkins, both of the Bedsread Mill.

Miss Lawless is the daughter of William Letcher and Annie Maude Lawless, both of whom are employed at the Towel Mill.

Eight Fieldcrest Scholarships, each worth a total of $2,000 over four years of college attendance, have been given in the past three school years.

In Towel Mill office, Mary Jane Lawless, recipient of a Fieldcrest Scholarship, received congratulations from D. A. Purcell, mill manager, and other officials. Miss Lawless and Mr. Purcell are shown seated, while standing are the scholarship winner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Letcher Lawless.
