SAFETY AFFECTS OTHERS — Cartoon cut-out on bulletin board at entrance to Karastan Mill emphasizes that others are affected when an employee is injured. This is the latest feature in a series used on the board to promote safety, housekeeping and quality. Looking over the display are Linda Voss, of the Karastan Office, and Billy Joyce, of the Burling Department.

140 BLOOD DONORS NEEDED SEPT. 12

Bloodmobile Coming To Spray; Special Efforts Being Made To Catch Up With Area Quota

Special efforts are being made to secure 140 donors for the next visit by the Bloodmobile in order to get in balance with the blood needs of the people in the Tri-City area.

The Bloodmobile is to be stationed at St. Luke's Episcopal Church (Rock Church) in Spray Wednesday, September 12, from 11 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

The new annual quota for the Tri-Cities is 750 pints, a reduction from the 850 pints originally established as the area's quota when the Tri-Cities began participation in the Blood Program in January, 1961.

It will be necessary to collect 125 pints on each of the six visits by the Bloodmobile in the current 12 months in order to meet the quota. Since only 111 pints were collected on the unit's visit to Leaksville in July, the area is now 14 pints behind in its quota.

Ben Dunton, of Fieldcrest Mills, the local Bloodmobile chairman, urged a big response to the appeal for donors for the September 12 visit.

Chairman Dunton said some confusion exists concerning the credit given for blood donated in the name of another person. To clarify this, he pointed out that when blood is given in the name of someone who has received blood, full credit is given the donor as well as the other person in whose name the blood is donated.

Mr. Dunton said that many persons have received blood under the program and their relatives and friends have not helped in securing donors.

Should Secure Donors

"I think that anyone who has been helped by the program should feel an obligation to see that blood is donated to the Bloodmobile so that it will be available when needed by other sick or injured," he said.

With reference to those who are eligible to give blood, Mr. Dunton pointed out that persons under 21 years old are not allowed to give blood with-

Greenville Squad Wins World's Rescue Title

The Greenville Rescue Squad won first place in the world championship rescue competition of the International Rescue and First Aid Association meeting at Montreal, Canada, early in August.

The eight-man squad plus one alternate received a trophy at a banquet ending the week-long meeting.

The squad's performance was based on its rating in three problems: lowering a victim from a second-story roof, rigging a tripod, and rescuing and lowering a burn victim in a light basket from a second-story roof.

In 1961, the Greenville squad won the third place award.

The Greenville Rescue Squad, composed of firemen and volunteers, was first organized in 1948 by the Greenville Fire Department with two firemen on duty at all times. The volunteer Rescue Squad was organized by the Jaycees in 1954. The fire department answers all regular fire calls and the Rescue Squad is called into action in major disasters and emergency situations.

A charter member and the president of the Greenville Rescue Squad is Dr. Sam T. White, Greenville physician who was the instructor for the class in first aid for the first aid attendants at the Karastan Spinning Division, in Greenville, in January, 1962.

Labor Day Holiday

All plants and offices at Fieldcrest Mills will be closed for the Labor Day Holiday Monday, September 3. In those departments operating on a three-shift basis, third shift employees will report to work at the usual time Monday night, September 3. Other shifts will report at the usual time Tuesday, September 4.

If any exceptions to the above schedules are necessary or in any cases where individuals or departments are needed to work on this holiday, the employees affected will be advised by mill management.

Due to the Labor Day Holiday, payroll checks for the week ending September 2, will be distributed at the mills Friday, September 7.
