

Bedspread Finishing Mill Wins Barbecue

In Sewing Department, a group of employees of the Bedspread Finishing Mill are served barbecue dinners in recognition of their fine safety record in 1962 when mill operated entire year without a lost-time injury.

Employees of the Bedspread Finishing Mill worked the year of 1962 without a lost-time injury and have continued their fine record to date in 1963.

In recognition of their accident-free record, the employees were given a barbecue in the company-sponsored contest in which a barbecue dinner is given all employees of a mill qualifying for a safety award from the North Carolina Department of Labor.

The barbecue was served in the mill at the employees' usual lunch period. The supervisors did the serving and donned white coats and chef's caps for the occasion.

J. P. Foster, mill superintendent, expressed appreciation to the employees for their interest in accident-prevention and congratulated them on their record.

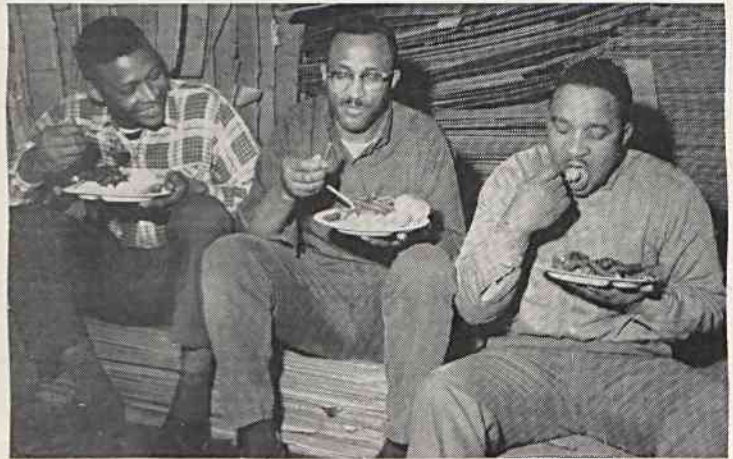

"Safety is a matter of individual interest," Mr. Foster said. "If each of us maintains a personal interest in the prevention of injuries we can extend our accident-free operation a long time into the future."
