

What's Their Line?

Unless you work at the Finishing Mill, you probably won't be able to identify the operation these two men are performing. Sure, they're rolling cloth. But what kind of cloth, and why it rolled.

It's the channel blanket rolling operation in the Blanket Cutting and Sewing Department. After napping and inspecting, the channel blanket fabric is rolled into large rolls for shipment to outside manufacturers of automatic blankets. The operators shown are Joe Harmon (left) and Roy Studdard.

In addition to being one of the largest producers of completed automatic blankets, Fieldcrest weaves and finishes a substantial number of the unwired "shells" for other major electrical and textile outlets.

Golden Wedding Day for Swinneys

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Swinney, Sr., were honored on a recent Sunday afternoon at "open house" when their children entertained at the Swinney home in Draper, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

In addition to members of the immediate family, a large number of friends and relatives, many from out of town, called during the afternoon.

Mr. Swinney, a native of Floyd

County, Va., retired under the Pension Plan in 1958. He first worked at the Blanket Mill in 1918 and was a supervisor in the Wool Spinning Department for many years.

He and Mrs. Swinney, the former Blanch Burgess, of Randolph County, were married at Draper June 22, 1913. They have six children, all of whom were home for this occasion. They are James G. C. Swinney Jr., of New Milford, N. J.; Albert M. Swinney, of Graham; Mrs. Ethel S. Lillard, of Cascade, Va.; Mrs. Emma Jean S. Fletcher, of Santa Ana, Calif.; George S. Swinney and Miss Louise Swinney, of the home.

In addition there are 11 grandchildren: Morrison Swinney Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Swinney; Diane, Kevin, Keith, Denise, Daryle and Kent Swinney, children of Mr. and Mrs. James G. C. Swinney Jr.; and Barbara, Lynn, Joann and Bobby Fletcher, children of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Fletcher.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank the people of the Karastan Setting Department for the love and kindness shown my brother, Dan B. Holland, while he worked there and to say that "Deedie" loved the people with whom he worked. I also am deeply grateful for the beautiful floral tribute they sent to his funeral. A special "Thank You" to all who remembered, at a time it was needed most.

EDNA H. HOOVER

MR. AND MRS. G. C. SWINNEY, SR.

MONDAY, AUGUST 12, 1963

Award Winners

Weavers and fixers on four looms at the Karastan Mill received the award given for above-standard performance during the month of June. Their names are shown below.

The award is given monthly on looms where the performance is above-standard in loom efficiency, seconds, burling costs, housekeeping and yield. All of the factors considered are crucial in the achievement of high quality and low costs.

LOOM NO. 14

Weavers	Fixers
James Murray	Moir Spencer

LOOM NO. 21

Weavers	Fixers
George Whitten	Robert Rodgers
Irene Meeks	Eugene Murray
J. C. Ragan	Wayne Griffin

LOOM NO. 45

Weavers	Fixers
Colonel Evans	D. T. Howell
George Booker	T. A. Roberson
Garvin Rieson	Melvin Fuller

LOOM NO. 47

Weavers	Fixers
Ada Whitten	Robert Rodgers
Lillie Brown	T. A. Roberson

Julius Sims (left), new assistant foreman at the Finishing Mill, is shown here with Quesell J. Scott, foreman.

New Assistant Foreman

Julius R. Sims was promoted from second hand to assistant foreman in the Blanket Cutting and Sewing Department at the Finishing Mill effective July 1.

He is a native of Spray and has worked in the Cutting and Sewing Department since 1954. He was employed as a cutter and as a quality inspector before becoming a second hand in May 1962.

Mr. Sims first joined the company in 1943 and worked as a roving hauler and as a spinner at the old Woolen Mill. He later was employed at the Blanket Mill for several years as a Model E spinner.