preciation of the time, energy and leadership (he) has put forth as general chairman of the campaign for this addition; as a member of the board of trustees and his keen interest in the hospital and the community . . ."

William B. Lucas, president of the hospital board of trustees, was to preside at the dedication, with Agnew H. Bahnson, Sr., of Winston-Salem, vice chairman of the North Carolina Medical Care Commission, making the presentation of the new clinic.

The Rev. John C. Whitley, president of the Tri-City Ministerial Association, was to give the invocation, and the Rev. John H. Daniels, vice president of the ministerial association, was to deliver the dedicatory prayer.

Brooking To Attend

Among the out-of-town visitors to attend was G. Edward Brooking, Jr., a member of the board of directors of Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.

John Motley Morehead, of Rye, N. Y., who gave $20,000 to the clinic and whose gift of $100,000 provided a fourth floor to the hospital, was to be a special guest at the dedication. The hospital was named in honor of the Morehead family.

Luther H. Hodges, U. S. Secretary of Commerce and former North Carolina governor, was invited to the dedication, but was uncertain whether he would be able to attend.

Other guests expected included C. P. Street, whose firm, C. P. Street Construction Co. of Charlotte, is general contractor for the clinic; and Col. J. N. Pease, president of J. N. Pease Associates, architectural firm for the clinic as well as the hospital.

Most Modern Equipment

The clinic is equipped with the latest X-ray machines available. There are new pathology laboratories and modern radioisotope equipment. A physical therapy department is available. The new cobalt machine will be used to treat deep-seated malignancies.

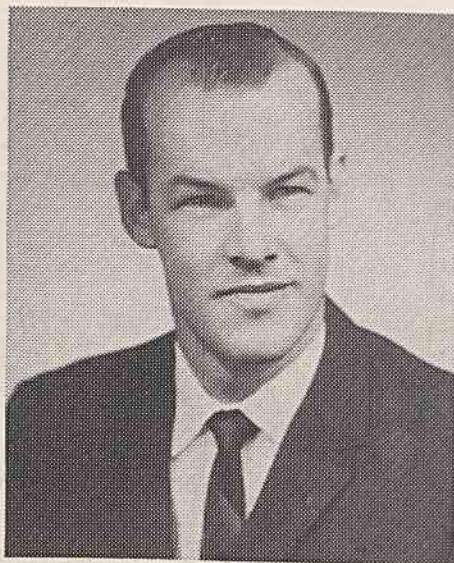

The cobalt-therapy equipment replaces 20-year-old X-ray therapy equipment which was moved from the old Tri-City Hospital.

C. P. Street Construction Co. was named general contractor for the clinic last October. Street submitted the low bid of $296,300 for construction of the building. Equipment, fees and other charges brought the total cost to $437,300.

Tips On Lifting

DO NOT lift awkward or especially heavy materials by yourself. Get someone to help.

INSPECT the object you're going to lift for sharp corners, nails, and other things that might cause injury.

LOOK over the ground or floor for obstacles and tripping hazards.

SET your feet solidly, somewhat apart. Sometimes it may be best to get down on one knee.

CROUCH as close to the load as possible. Keep your back straight, but bend at the hips so you are over the load. The object is to do the work with your leg muscles and not the weaker back muscles.

TO LIFT, straighten your legs and swing your back into a vertical position.

REMEMBER, — Let your leg muscles do the WORK — YOU WILL BE GLAD YOU DID!

Towel Mill

The Towel Mill 25-Year Club picnic was held at the Fieldale Baseball Park on Saturday afternoon, September 7, attracting a large attendance including a good representation from among the regular members of the club.

D. E. Simons, mill superintendent, master of ceremonies during the program which preceded the picnic. D. A. Purcell, manager of the Towel Mill, extended the welcome and made brief remarks.

Robert A. Harris, Fieldcrest vice president, manufacturing, spoke to the group and reviewed the progress the company has made in the past 10 years. He described specific improvements at the Towel Mill and reviewed major points in the company's over-all progress and growth.

Mr. Harris expressed the company's appreciation of the loyalty and steadfastness of its long-service employees who he said are "the backbone of the company and its most valuable asset."

In brief remarks Clinton J. Frank, director of industrial relations, brought greetings from the management group at Fieldcrest and expressed his pleasure in attending the Fieldale outing.

Nine New Members

A special feature of the program was the presentation of the nine new members who became eligible for membership in the 25-Year Club this year. The new members were asked to stand and were given a round of applause.

In the drawings for attendance prizes, towel sets were awarded Luther C. Hinton, of the Plant Service Department, and L. E. Harrington, of the Sewing Department.

Towel sets also were awarded Claude Hall, retired from Plant Service Department; J. Saunders Hunsinger, Weave Room; and Tempest Stults, retired from Sewing Department, as winners in guessing contests.

Participants were asked to guess the number of yards of yarn in a ball of Velvet bath towel and the number of ring travelers contained in a glass of that was shown.

William H. Richardson, Jr., superintendent of warehousing, shipping and customer service, gave the invocation preceding a picnic supper served in the community picnic shelter.
