

agnostic Clinic During Open House

President Harold W. Whitcomb is shown as he made a brief talk during ceremonies dedicating new clinic named in his honor.

Approximately 1,500 persons toured the new clinic to inspect its facilities following the dedication exercises. This picture shows one of the many groups to begin the guided tours.

Visitors take turns looking at cobalt machine through thick glass. From left, D. F. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McGavisk, Mrs. W. J. Gordon, Cuma Odell, Mrs. J. T. MacIsaac, guide.

Troy Hodges, a guide, points out equipment in pathology laboratory to Dontral Earles (left) of the Bedspread Mill, and B. C. Turney, secretary of the hospital board of trustees.
