Employees Give $50,394 In Fund Drive

Fieldcrest Organization Gives Nearly 85 Per Cent Of Goal In Community-Wide Campaign

In a magnificent response, again demonstrating their interest in the welfare and betterment of their home communities, Fieldcrest employees contributed $50,394 in the Tri-City Community Fund campaign.

In addition to the employees' gifts, the company, through the Fieldcrest Foundation, donated $6,500 to the fund. The combined contributions of the employees and the company, which totaled $56,894, were nearly 85 per cent of the community-wide goal of $67,207.

Of the 4,011 employees on the payroll, 2,728, or 68 per cent, contributed a day's pay or more. In addition, many more employees signed up for continuing deductions.

C. J. Frank, general chairman of the Community Fund campaign, and Haven Newton, chairman of the Fieldcrest campaign, congratulated Fieldcrest employees who they said had done "a tremendous job." They expressed their pride in Fieldcrest employees and thanked them for their "excellent support."

Following a report meeting October 27, it was announced that the over-all community campaign had gone "over the top" with $78,500 contributed to date for 117 per cent of the goal.

"We are pleased at going over the top

Worthville Employees Join Credit Union

The Fieldcrest Mills Credit Union has been extended to employees at the Alexander Sheeting Mill, Forest City, the North Carolina Finishing Company Division, Salisbury, and the Worthville Sheeting Mill, Worthville. The response was good at each location with many employees joining the Credit Union during the first week.

Second Stop Polio Sunday Set For Nov. 15

Tri-City employees and their families will share in the effort to banish polio forever from the area when they go out to the various immunization clinics Sunday, November 15, to receive their final dose of Sabin oral vaccine.

On the first Stop Polio Sunday, September 20, more than 13,000 Tri-City persons received the vaccine. They filed by serving tables and each was given a lump of sugar which had been treated with the vaccine. Those who received the dose termed it "quick and pleasant."

In urging those who received the first dose to be sure to take the second dose November 15, Dr. L. Gordon Clarke, of Draper, medical director of the Stop

Polio Sunday campaign in Rockingham County, stressed that everyone over three months old needs BOTH DOSES for complete protection.

"Since the Sabin vaccine eliminates the possibility of carrying the polio virus in the body, to be passed on to an unprotected person, everyone needs to take the final dose," Dr. Clarke said.

He emphasized the importance of everyone's taking the vaccine including senior citizens, pregnant women, and diabetics. Persons who have had the Salk polio shots also need to take the Sabine vaccine to avoid the possibility of being a carrier of the dread disease

Greenville Sets Record

Employees of the Karastan Spinning Division at Greenville set an all-time record when 98.5 per cent of all the employees pledged a contribution in the United Fund campaign. Moreover, 98 per cent of the employees pledged a contribution of a day's pay or more, and 95 per cent of the Greenville employees are signed up for continuing deductions.

The tabulation shows that of the 268 employees at the plant, 262 pledged a day's pay or more, two employees pledged contributions less than a day's pay, and only four employees failed to make a contribution.

In the following departments 100 per cent of the employees pledged at least a day's pay: Dyeing, Blending, Carding, Twisting, Winding & Reeling; Superintendent's Office, and Plant Service.
