

74 Fieldcresters Donate At Bloodmobile

Registering before donating blood at Spray Methodist Church March 2, left to right, seated, are Rose Kallam, Fleta Martin; standing, Hazel King, Margaret Barton and Myrtle Shropshire, all from Bedspread Finishing Mill.

Mrs. Pat Suttle, Red Cross nurse, takes medical histories of Scott Chowning (left) and William Murphy, both of Sheet Finishing.

Of the 102 pints of blood donated when the Bloodmobile visited the Spray Methodist Church Tuesday, March 2, 74 pints were given by Fieldcresters. The Finishing Mill, with 32, furnished the largest number of donors of any Fieldcrest unit.

Employees from the following plants and offices gave blood: Central Warehouse, Karastan Mill, Sheeting Mill, Specials Department, Sheet Finishing Mill, Bedspread Finishing Mill, Blanket Mill, Spray Standards Department, Bleachery, Finishing Mill and General Offices.

J. Scott Chowning, of the Sheet Finishing Mill, and Russell Stewart, of the Blanket Mill, became eligible for the "Gallon Club". There were 22 first-time donors and 39 persons gave blood as replacements for blood received by friends or relatives.

Norman Young, co-chairman of the Tri-City Blood Program, said he was pleased with the results of the visit although the quota of 175 pints was not obtained. He said that a large amount of sickness in the community made it impossible for some persons to give blood and that the inclement weather also kept some donors at home.

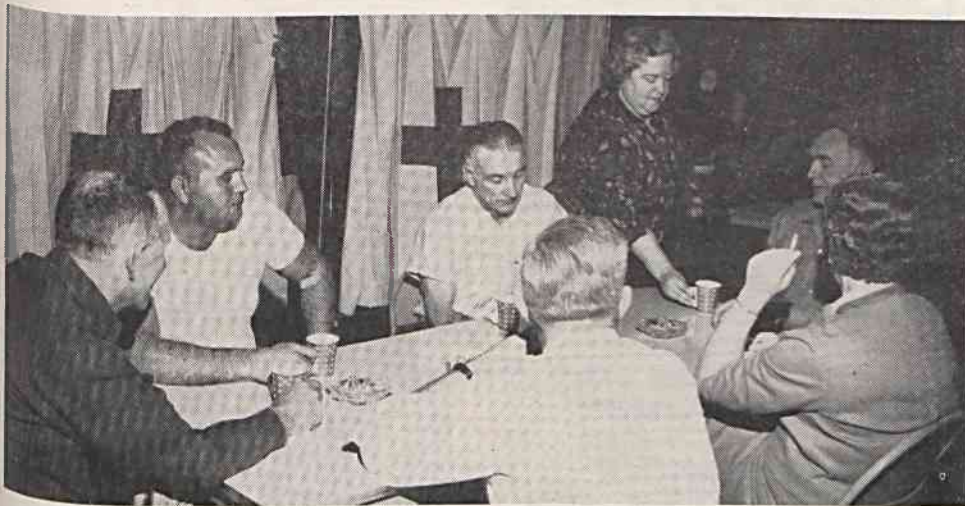

Mildred Dodson and Margarett Trent, of the Blanket Cutting and Sewing Department at the Finishing Mill, served as volunteer workers at the Bloodmobile.

Members of the Spray Fire Department, the Virginia-Carolina Citizens Band Radio Club, the Leaksville-Spray Junior Woman's Club and Oscar Mills, Spray pharmacist, led the donor recruitment campaign preceding the visit.

A doctor is on duty at all times during blood collection. In this picture Kathleen Meeks, of Blanket Cutting and Sewing, has her blood pressure checked by Dr. M. G. Couturier.

Mildred Dodson, of the Finishing Mill, who was a volunteer worker, serves refreshments to blood donors, clockwise from left, Bernie Griggs, Noah McBride, John L. Redmon, Woodrow Vestal, Evna Bryant and Edward S. Barksdale.

Margaret Trent (right), volunteer of Finishing Mill, talks with Mrs. H. W. Whitcomb, chairman of hostess group.