

Fieldcrest Scholar Makes Dean's List

Glenda Overby, a Fieldcrest Scholarship recipient, has been named to the Dean's List at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Her grades were all A's for the past semester.

Glenda is a senior and is majoring in mathematics. She plans to become a high school teacher. A Morehead High School graduate, she was one of the three young people—children of employees—who were awarded Fieldcrest Scholarships in the fall of 1961 and one of the 15 who have received scholarships since the program began. In addition, the first Muscogee Foundation, awarded its first scholarship in 1964.

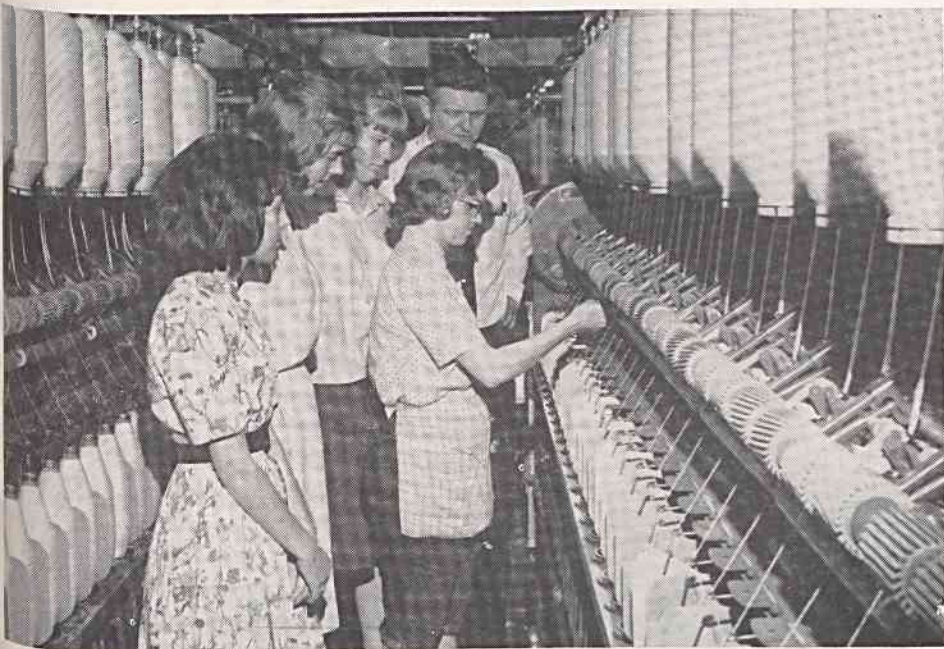

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Overby of 208 Lawrence Street, Spray. Her father is a shearing machine operator at the Bedspread Mill. Glenda was employed in the Industrial Relations Department in the summer of 1964.

Nine Supervisors Get Training In First Aid

Certificates have been presented to nine Blanket Mill men who have completed a standard Red Cross first aid course taught by Swanson Via, a member of the Tri-City Rescue Squad and a qualified Red Cross instructor.

Completing the course were: Cecil Ball, assistant foreman, Wool Spinning; John W. Cassell, assistant foreman, Wool Picking; Calvin Cochran, second hand, Inspecting; Jesse W. Griggs, assistant foreman, Weaving; Edward Gillie, assistant foreman, Yarn Preparation; Gene Inman, special assistant to the superintendent; Paul E. Jones, assistant foreman, Wool Carding; C. W. Johnson, assistant foreman, Plant Service; and J. Richard Ramsey, clerk, Wool Picking.

Any Fieldcrester interested in taking a standard or advanced Red Cross first aid course is requested to telephone Grief Jones, chairman of first aid for the Leaksville-Spray Red Cross chapter, or telephone the Red Cross office.

Leaksville-Spray Junior High School students shown at Bedspread Mill are, from left, Dorothy Strader, Ann Lester, Hope Wooten. Spinner is Alberta Wray. In background is R. L. Hildreth, Dyeing Department foreman, guide for the group.

Student Groups Visit Fieldcrest

Groups of students from Draper Junior High School and Leaksville-Spray Junior High School toured some of the Fieldcrest plants in the Tri-Cities recently as part of a new ninth grade course entitled "Introduction to Vocations."

The Draper students visited the Blanket and Sheeting Mills and the Leaksville-Spray group toured the Bedspread Mill and the Karastan Rug Mill. At each mill the students assembled and were given information about that particular mill. They were then divided into smaller groups for the mill tours. Guides were assigned to conduct them through the mill and to answer their questions.

Approximately 85 students are participating in the course, 70 at Leaksville-Spray Junior High School and 15 at the Draper Junior High School.

Preceding the visits, J. E. Gardner, training manager at Fieldcrest, spoke to the one class at Draper and the four classes at Leaksville-Spray to give advance information that would make the visits more meaningful for the students. He discussed the nature of the jobs in the textile industry and the educational and aptitude requirements for placement on these jobs.

Group from Draper Junior High School is shown at Blanket Mill. At far right is Bob Redwine, teacher. The inspector shown is Ruby Barrow. At far left is Fred Jones, training coordinator at Blanket Mill, who was guide for the tour.