

Social Security Says Inquire Before Retire

To all who may be thinking about retiring, these helpful social security hints are offered:

Inquire before you retire to get the facts you need from a social security specialist—facts that may help you in making your retirement decision, as well as in filing your application for benefits later.

Contact the Social Security office three months before you retire, if you're 62 or over. Also get in touch with the Social Security office three months before you're 62, if you're already "retired," or three months before age 60 if you're a widow. By all means contact the Social Security office before you're 65 to file for Medicare even if you're still working.

Evidence Is Needed

You'll need to have certain evidence or proofs to complete your claim. In the absence of an original birth certificate or baptismal certificate, other older records or documents such as a census record, family Bible record, or old insurance policy may be acceptable as evidence of your age.

Also a marriage certificate and birth certificates of children may be needed. The social security employee will tell you if any additional evidence is required.

Have your social security card (and also the cards, or verified correct numbers, of your wife or children for whom applications are filed), and the correct dates of birth, marriage, death, etc.

Also have your latest W-2 slip (statement of earnings and taxes withheld) or, if you were self-employed last year, a copy of your Federal income tax return. Be able to tell the Social Security representative how much you have earned to date in the year of retirement and the expected total earnings for the year.
