Sheet Finishing Is Barbecue Winner

Employees of the Sheet Finishing Mill worked a total of 570,823 hours without a lost-time accident (an average of 2,106 hours per employee) and for their good record were given a barbecue dinner. This was for a period through March, 1970. The date of the last lost-time accident was March 5, 1969.

The barbecue was served in the mill to employees on all working shifts, with supervisors assisting with the serving.

The award dinner was under terms of the Fieldcrest safety contest in which the Company gives a free dinner to all employees of any mill operating an average of 2,000 hours per employee without a lost-time accident.

Pictures on the opposite page show some of the employees of the Sheet Finishing Mill as they enjoyed the barbecue dinner earned by their good safety performance.
