

Prizes Drawn For 'Fair Share' Contributors

The picture above shows a scene at the drawings for prizes among the names of Fieldcresters who pledged a Fair Share in the Eden United Fund campaign.

Pauline McBride, Blanket Mill Wool Spinning, hands a ticket to Raven Ellis, an area personnel manager who was vice chairman of the campaign at Fieldcrest. Looking on are representatives from the various mill divisions.

Smith, Channell Blanket Department, Blanket Finishing Mill; Joe Holliman, Jr., Sheet Finishing; Payton Cruise, Sheeting Spinning; Addie Light, Bedspread Spinning; Fleta Martin, Bedspread Finishing; Arthur Brown, Karastan Weaving; Hazel Shipton, Blanket Packaging, Blanket Finishing; and Theodore Strange, Non-Woven Mill.

Names of the winners of the prizes were printed in the last issue of The Mill Whistle.

Bedspread Group Receives First Aid Training

Eight employees of the Bedspread Mill completed a first aid course taught on October 12 and 13 in the Bedspread Mill conference room.

The four-hour course was a condensed version of the standard 10-hour Red Cross first aid course and was developed jointly by the Medical and Safety Departments. This condensed course concentrates on emergency situations most likely to occur in an industrial plant.

The purpose of the instruction is to provide, in each mill, a trained first aid attendant for each shift in each department where there are a sufficient number of employees to warrant this. First aid training is also done in conjunction with fire brigade training.

Courses are taught by Lloyd Bolt of the Medical Department and, on occasion, by Sgt. Alton Wilson of the Burns Guards.

Certificates were awarded, on com-
