using modern looms that mechanically reproduce this durable hand decorated fabric. It is adapted for today's standard bedsteads, is available in white and antique colorways and is home washable and dryable.

The Linden Court bedspread was designed for today's traditional homes, yet is antique in concept. The original covering, a gift from the family of Major William Mayo to the museum, was hand loomed of home grown and processed fibers. This spread is available in the traditional color combinations of dark blue-natural, white-natural, green-natural and gold-natural. It is home washable and dryable.

All three Fieldcrest spreads were photographed in the bedrooms of the Wickham-Valentine House.
