Earthtones Featured In Karastan's Fall Lines

Karastan will introduce a totally new and "revolutionary" collection of wool rugs this fall featuring antique Oriental designs, but rendered in rich earthtones which are today's most important home fashion colors.

Called "Oriental Reflections," this new group of rugs represents "The Beginning of a New Tradition" for Karastan, according to Robert V. Dale, division vice president-products of the Fieldcrest Carpet Division.

Also highlighting Karastan's fall carpet fashions will be two new super-soft broadloom carpets with an opulent "silken" look and touch, which join a special group of textures called "The Intimates".

As he unveiled Karastan's broadloom fashions for Fall, 1975, Mr. Dale noted that the two grades, called "Allureau" and "Lumineau" feature extra-fine nylon yarns that provide a "warm and very intimate feeling". Therefore, he said, Karastan has decided to put these broadlooms along with its "Paramour" carpet, introduced last spring, in a group named "The Intimates".

Mr. Dale also reported that Karastan will restore the famous "American Eagle" rug in honor of the nation's Bicentennial. This rug had been made as a small accent rug or wall hanging for many years.

New Oriental Designs

In discussing the new collection of wool rugs featuring antique Oriental designs, Mr. Dale explained that the phrase "New Tradition" applies to the Oriental Reflections group "because there is much that is traditional yet so much that is completely new about the collection."

On the traditional side, there are the "legendary" Oriental designs from Persia, India, Turkey and the Caucasus, all executed in a dense pile of pure wool, the traditional face fiber for these styles.

"But new and revolutionary," Mr. Dale said, "is the fact that the rugs are produced by the most modern technology in carpet manufacturing today. This process, which is exclusive to Karastan, utilizes computers in reproducing the intricate designs from "dyed-in-the-wool" yarns providing a depth of color and definition of pattern seen up to now only in the best woven carpets."

"Also," he said, "our new process concentrates all the

Security Department — What Does It Do?

The Fieldcrest Security Department — What is it? What does it do? Why do we need it?

Exposure to loss exists within the structure of every enterprise and, certainly, within the environment of Fieldcrest Mills, Inc. Restricting or eliminating exposure to loss depends to a high degree on a sound security program which is designed and conceived as a means of prevention and to alert management to any deviations occurring in the profit posture. A well-conceived and implemented program must involve all employees.

Under the general supervision of Rufus R. Beaver, special assistant to the president of the company, the Security Department is responsible for the protection of Fieldcrest property and of Fieldcrest employees while they are on the job, according to Howard E. Richardson, director of security for Fieldcrest.

"Fieldcrest's security guard services have been provided by the Wackenhut Corporation of Coral Gables, Florida, since March of 1972. Approximately 172 security guards, both full-time and part-time, are utilized in the protection of company property and company employees at all locations except the Greenville plants. Eighty-five of these are employed in the Eden area," Mr. Richardson said.

"Fieldcrest, like any other manufacturer or business, must
