"Calm, sedate Ruth Moore is trying to banish the use of chewing gum in the library at Harvard.

"Mary Neely is following in the footsteps of Miss Dickinson and is having trouble with a twelve year old co-ed.

"Doris Johnson is holding a brides' school in Chicago. She teaches them to cook a Southern dinner in three days.

"Rachel Sloan is a famous choir director.

"Alice Davis, in a few years, will patiently teach little Johnnie his A B C's so he can go to Carolina like Daddy.

"Ray Calhoun has a Health Farm. Her biggest worry is the lack of social life in the country.

"Margaret Mackintosh is working with her father, composing South Carolina poems. Her favorite subject is the origin of the dances.

"Mary Lunn is smiling--naturally, for she is the official model for the magazine Smile.

"Joy Juniper is singing in better and brighter night spots. She is famous for her version of Shortnin' Bread and Chloe.

"Laura Bedinger has left Montreat to journey to Chicago, where she has become basketball coach for the Chicago Bears.

"Sarah Clark will work a few years, then return to Montreat with her hobby, circus fleas.

"Mary Robertson has gone to Scotland to revive interest in highland ballads.

"Baylie Castles is conducting a class of advanced shorthand at her Alma Mater.

"Fassie Swift is conducting a class in Music Appreciation between the duties imposed upon her by 'her Davids'.

ing to sell stockings to the Knights of the Garter. June Morgan has gone to Egypt to do research work for the Smithsonian Institute, trying to figure out why the shore is so near the ocean. Mayme Freeman, because of her ability to make noise, is now head cheer leader at Northwestern, while Betty Gray Wilcox's quiet meekness has gotten for her the job of head matron on death row at Sing Sing. Katherine Bedinger, because of her amazing ability to slip around at night and not be heard, is night-watchman at Vassar. Florida oranges are now being grown on the sidewalks of New York from Jessie Collette's instructions on how it's done. I glance at my time piece to find I have only four minutes left for hunting our dear sponsor. I see she had gone to the "country" instead of the World's Fair to convalesce from a bad "love-bug" bite. Only enough time left for me to sail back to my little home, where I thank my lucky stars my fondest dreams have come true-- I'm married to a pauper and have venetian blinds.
