

QUIPS AND QUIBBLES

COLLEGE HUMOR

Now that spring is definitely in the air along with the coal smoke and rain, we thought we should keep up with the birds and print a few songs that remind us of certain people around here.

The latest song-hit according to Mary Jo, Doris Royster, Gladys Goodman and Helen Cassel is the theme song of the Montreat election, "Somebody Else is Taking My Place." Mary Jo, at least, has an opening for a future job. She was the "pin-up girl" of the "M" Club-Varsity game. These wartime zippers!

Rachel Laney and Susie Smith have decided that "It Might As Well Be Spring," after their accidents on slippery rocks in the creek. There's still many a slip 'twixt the creek and the hip.

"Don't Get Around Much Anymore." Sprained ankles seem to be contagious. So do majors. Too many people are singing "Don't Fence Me In" in the key of A Major, which is not always a first-class rendition. They will probably soon discover there are a few things they "No Can Do."

You'll never hear Mary Katherine Kell singing "No Letter Today." That girl definitely has a pull with the postal system.

Most of the Freshman's grades this quarter will be down "South of the Border" line, due to Freshman Fiesta. At least Miss Hoyt won't be singing, "I'm Walking the Floor Over You" any more.

The cafeteria reminds us of "Always"—a line, with Miss Henderson directing "Sweet and Low" and Ida warbling, "I Want A Man of My Own." The menu will probably be "One Meat-ball."

"I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" describes the weather lately. Everyone is inclined to mutter "Give Back My Boots and Sa—" well, boots, anyway. Did you know that Doris Printz lost fifteen pairs of shoes somewhere in Alba? No wonder she goes around sighing, "Shoe, Shoe, Shoe, Baby." "Time Waits for No One" and here comes that editor again, so "I'll be Seeing You."

HIGH SCHOOL HUMOR

"It might as well be Spring" for everyone's got "Hey" fever. But, into each life some wind must blow, because the hair's beginning to fall. Until snowy weather comes, Let it storm, Let it storm, Let it storm! "Write in your own back yard" and tell Casey to "Dance to the tune of Alexander's Rag-Time-Band."

"You won't be satisfied until you" "get measles" now that you're "in the mood." "Temptation" runs hand in hand with "jealousy." "Night and day" until you get them.

If you've seen "people are funny" (Pete Peterson and Kay Bryant) using some "Montreat Pep and Go" saying "I don't want no more of Montreat life," ask them if "this is the way they wash those windows" "Sunday, Monday or always."

"There'll be some changes made" in High School next year but the seniors say, "I should care, it makes no difference now," unless "Irene" "gets a Zero" today and has to stick to "Reading and Riting and Rithmetic," not for just an hour, day or year but "Always."

It's been a long-long time since the long week-end but "My Buddydy" and I "Dream" "together" "Because" "We're Homesick, that's all." All we need is a "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" that goes, "take it easy" and I won't fence you in.

If you're a "Little on the Lonely Side" look to "My Blue Heaven" and "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star."

Bits From About

He's just her type—a man.—
"The Bluejacket."

Policeman: "How did you happen to knock him down?"

Motorist: "I didn't officer. I slowed down to let him cross and he fainted."—"The Blue and Gray."

No. 1—"I love that girl!"
No. 2—"I second the emotion."
—"The Blue and Gray."

Dr. Frick in Biology: "How many sexes are there?"

Herman: "Three."

Dr. Frick: "Name them."

Herman: "Male sex, female sex," and after a brief pause said, "Insects."—"The Blue and Gray."

The hot dog never bites or growls
When anybody sights it;
The hot dog never bites or howls,
But feeds the hand that bites it.

—"Wingspread."
