

Lib Miller Weds In Beautiful Church Ceremony

It is really an accomplishment to combine a long weekend trip, a wedding, and a reunion, but it can be done. This past long weekend, Mrs. Holt, Jane, Agnes Godert, B. A. Attwood, Frances Brown, and Margery Washburn loaded themselves into Holt's car and went to Virginia to Lib Miller's wedding.

For the benefit of new girls, Lib was last year's editor-in-chief of the S. P. S. Everyone had been looking forward to Lib and Real's wedding for a long time; and the fortunate few who really went, planned from the time school started.

It was a beautiful wedding. The church was decorated with evergreens, white pom poms, mums, and ivy. The bridesmaids in lavender and green, and the maid of honor in yellow made a colorful setting for Lib, radiant in white satin. At the reception after the wedding, the guests saw the cake cut, and pulled ribbons from it bearing tokens of good or ill omen, kissed the bride and groom, and besprinkled them freely with rice and confetti as they left.

But where does the reunion come in? Well, besides the group that traveled from Montreat, there were other Montreat girls there. Betty Mae Hoylman and Ann Stevenson who live "just over the mountain" at Craigsville, Virginia, were there. Ginny Wood had come over for the afternoon from her classes at Charlottesville. Vickie Samburg and Mary Katherine (Wood) McCormick were bridesmaids, and Lenore Orr, a Montreat girl from a few years back, sang.

Yes, it may be an accomplishment to combine a long weekend trip, a wedding, and a reunion, but it can be done. And is it fun!

years was a medical missionary to China, has been living in Montreat since his return from the mission field and is one of the leading surgeons at the Mission Hospital in Asheville.

Authorized by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., to make this trip, Dr. Bell left Montreat October 17, returning at 3 a. m. Sunday morning, November 6. He had had only a few hours of sleep when he stood before the Montreat congregation. He must have been tired and travel-weary, but nothing of this could be detected as he graphically depicted his trip.

There was a ring in his voice and joy in his face as he told of meeting American missionaries and of seeing the great work of God going forward all over the world.

Dr. Bell said that his first impression of the trip was that of a shrinking world. Traveling mostly by air, during the 21 days, he covered four continents, crossed the equator four times, and visited the largest cities of four nations. Once, from the heart of the Belgian Congo, he had talked by radio to his wife here and been heard by another person in Georgia.

Leaving Miami by plane, Dr. Bell first went to Brazil. There, while visiting in three Presbyterian mission stations, he found a bit of home away from home. In Belem, a city at the mouth of the Amazon river, were the Rev. and Mrs. Don Williams from Black Mountain. Farther south, at Recife was Miss Collette, a former student and teacher at Montreat; at the same station he met the father of Naomi Viedri, a Brazilian girl who served in the cafeteria this summer. When he spoke during the chapel exercises at the Agnes-Erskine School for Girls there, two of his former patients were among those in the audience.

Navajos Triumph In Soccer Game

The soccer tournament started off with a bang with the Mohawk-Navajo game. It was a close game all the way through with the Navajos winning 2-1. The Cherokee and Hiwassee game was played next in line. This was an exciting game ending with a score of 2-0 in favor of the Hiwassees. Again the Navajos were on the field, this time playing with the Choctaws, and winning 6-2. The Cherokee-Mohawk game followed omed to China), at the luxuriant forests and at the dry, trackless deserts. He was amazed to see millions of acres of land uncultivated and yet, unending stores of luscious native fruits. He saw a lake with exotic, cobalt - blue waters as breath-taking as Lake Springs, Florida. In the heart of this "darkest continent", he visited a leper colony where the pastor had refused to leave as an "arrested case"; he found schools for American as well as native children; he saw modern homes and a hydro-electric plant. He saw a continent that had progressed from the Stone Age to the Airplane Age in sixty years. And he saw yet more - missionaries who seemed able to surmount every obstacle, teachers who laid Christian foundations in the lives of tomorrow's leaders, doctors who fought superstitions and healed ministered to every need, women who sympathized, men who prayed. He saw; and what he saw renewed his faith in mankind and gave him a greater message for us.

Portugal was Dr. Bell's next stop after leaving Africa. At Lisbon he visited the mission station being supported by a church in Portugal, the Presbyterian Church U. S. and the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. From there he went on to Paris, to London, then across the Atlantic to New York and home. A tour of half the world in 21 days!

He had enjoyed a rare privilege and through his inspiring reports, many will be able to share his adventures and his enthusiasm for world missions.

with a score of 4 for the Mohawks and 2 for the Cherokees.

Several other sports on the campus now are table tennis, deck tennis, shuffleboard, and badminton. For you girls who aren't yet acquainted with these games, here are a few facts.

Table tennis is a form of miniature tennis modeled after the court game. Though the game appears easy, the beginner finds it not quite so simple when he once starts playing. The game can be very interesting when the players have learned a good technique.

Like badminton, deck tennis has only recently become popular as a hand sport. The game is officially played with a rubber ring, which is tossed from one player to another across the net, until one player fails to return it, or it lands outside the court. This game may be played as singles, doubles, or mass.

Shuffleboard may be played by two or four players. The object of the game is to make a score as high as possible by playing your own discs on the scoring spaces and by preventing your opponent from scoring.

In the game badminton, as in tennis and ping pong, a net, a bird, and rackets are used. It may be played with two or four players. The game is started when the first server drops the bird and gives it a scoop just before it reaches the floor and sends it across the net. The bird is sent back and forth across the net until the end of the game.
