

April Events

We shouldn't complain of leading a dull life this month, for the coming of April showers brought April parties—a welcomed interlude.

The April girls, or those celebrating their birthday in this month, had their combined birthday party on April 20. The table was attractively decorated with dainty cellophane umbrellas and silver raindrops. Place cards made in the fashion of rubber boots, mud puddles, and umbrellas emphasized the theme; and the large white frosted cake in the center of the table added beauty as well as palate appeal.

On the evening of April 22, the Sophomores had a class party at the Mooney home on Florida Terrace. There the chief cooks—Mr. and Mrs. Mooney, Miss Ann Arthur, and Miss Caroyne Fields, class sponsor—served hamburgers with all the trimmings to the girls. The re-acting of "Freshman Frolics," the class's talent show of last year, provided much amusement. Then for further amusement, the group went to Asheville to see "Cinderella," where the antics of "Gus" and "Jack" provided a delightful ending for the evening.

At the same time the Sophomores were having their party, the Freshman, Juniors, and Seniors were entertaining high school seniors from Black Mountain and Glade Valley in the Rec. Hall. Before the picnic supper, there was square dancing. Later Pat

It is evident that dishonesty is not prevalent in Montreat. The calmness and trust with which the

Harley led the group in singing and in other games; and when everyone had finished eating, there was skating for about an hour. As a grand finale, the group went back to the dorms to enjoy fudge, coffee, and "tall tales."

On the evening of April 27, the old and new S.C.A. Councils were entertained at a formal banquet in the Home Economics lab, decorated with spring flowers. After a welcome from the former president, Betty Attwood, and the response by the new one, Agnes Godert, Dr. McGregor, as guest speaker, gave the address, carrying out the theme of the evening—Temple Builders.

The annual College Junior-Senior banquet was held in Assembly Inn on April 1. The dining hall was decorated in accordance with the main theme, "Spring In A Dutch Garden," complete with tulips, picket fence and gate, wishing well, a life-size windmill, and a moon. The program consisted of various Dutch dances and songs, with a solo number "April Showers" by Pat Williamson. Mr. Hugh Mitchell of Statesville was guest speaker.

These have been the main events but there have been numerous informal gatherings—just for fun—in between.

majority of witnesses greeted an act of open theft was amazing to this staff member!

Here are the details for those who missed it: On Monday morning, March 27, between ten and eleven (just at mail time, although the mail was late), I, being of relatively sound mind, casually walked up to the coke machine, opened a bottle with an opener furnished by an unsuspecting cabinet member, and began to drink an R. C. Cola through straws pilfered from the cafeteria. This was all done, may I add, upon arrangement with members of the Board. This is added to forestall any who might be tempted to follow my lead—your results might be more violent.

The people in the room, who were lounging on laundry and perched on coke cases, after a preliminary gasp, took a philosophic view of the whole proceeding. They seemed assured that I was merely seeing if it could be done, and would deposit my nickle and remove the bottle when I finished. They, too, were interested in the scientific side of the experiment. Several asked how I got the bottle open, and where I got the straws. Others worried about the power wasted by having the machine

Hiwassees Victors In Volleyball Tournament

The Hiwassees and Choctaws ended the volleyball tournament with an exciting tie-breaking game which brought victory to the Hiwassees. The tournament had some difficulty in beginning because of climatic and social conditions, but in spite of the slow beginning the games were speedily concluded.

The victories were Navajos over Hiwassees, Choctaws over Cherokees, Hiwassees over Mohawks, Choctaws over Navajos, Mohawks over Navajos, Hiwassees over Cherokees, Choctaws over Mohawks, Navajos over Cherokees, Hiwassees over Choctaws, Mohawks over Cherokees.

open so long. When I complained that my best position made it difficult to swallow, one helpful soul said that I deserved to choke, or at least get a stomach ache. Unfortunately, the only Board members who passed through knew of the arrangement, and displayed a remarkable calm. Some of the looks I got—without comment—seemed to imply that my mind was going back on me.

I was fortunate that I chose a frozen drink, for that made drinking slower, and enabled more people to pass by. However, the mail came, I was forgotten, so I pushed the bottle to the bottom of the machine and left. And no one has questioned my honesty yet!
