

Marshall Reigns As Queen Of May

Pictured above are the May Queen who reigned at the May Day activities at Montreat, her maid of honor, and her attendants. From left to right they are: Mary Blanton Armistead, freshman high school, Kathryn Mull, freshman college, Carolyn Williams, senior college, Ann Harris, senior high school, Toni An, maid of honor, Ann Stubbs, crown bearer, Betty Marshall, Queen of May, Barbara Betts, sophomore high school, Virginia Blackburn, sophomore college, Maria Spence, Junior high school, and Mary Ann Smoak, junior college.

Photo by Edward Dupuy, Jr.

INSTALLATIONS CLIMAX—

Continued from Page 3

Chief, issued a challenge to the new Staff and Jolene Parks, the succeeding Editor-in-Chief, responded.

At 8:00, the student body gathered in Howerton Rec. Hall for the Board exercises. The vice-president led a short devotional after which each of the sixteen girls capped the girl receiving her office and proffered a few words of congratulations. Jeanette Nash, the old president, congratulated Helen Duke, the new president, and gave her a word of encouragement for the work ahead.

On the seventeenth of April, Gaither Chapel again was the setting of a candle-light installation. The Cabinets, all clad in white, were seated on the stage. Each of the twelve Cabinet members took the pledge. Evelyn Hennessee, the retiring president, presented Patricia Williams, the incoming president, with the gavel and con-

H & W 5 & 10

WE APPRECIATE

YOUR BUSINESS

Black Mountain, N. C.

CLASS POEM

The seniors are waiting with glad expectancy,
As our college days draw swift to a close,
For the adventure of life to unfold before us,
The mission that God in His time will disclose.

We fear not the struggles, the pain, or the failures
That come to each in the course of life,
For we know that He is there to help us
And ever is near us in joy or strife.

We take as our guide the "Montreat Spirit,"
The memory of friends that have grown so dear,
The ideals we all have learned to value,
And thoughts of hours that shone each year.

So, though we leave school days with sadness,
We eagerly face the tasks ahead;
Serenely in the knowledge we carry with us—
Conviction that each is divinely led.

Carolyn Williams and Virginia Bean, Class Poets

gratulated her upon the honor bestowed on her. Pat then responded with a speech of appreciation and gratitude for the duties given her and the new cabinet.

Mr. J. P. Williams gave the charge, and the student body sang the Alma Mater in closing.

'It's May, May, May'

Have you ever longed to visit a land of fairies? A shoe where lived an old woman and her many children? Nursery rhyme characters such as Mother Goose, Alice in Wonderland, Peter Pan, Bo Peep, Jack and Jill? A beautiful lawn nestled under the trees and flowers—Nature herself clothed in queenly garments?

Won't you go with me on this beautiful day of May 3 to a lawn—Anderson—nestled in a place known as Montreat? Why, yes—here's a fine place to sit. Here we can see everything and hear, too—isn't it beautiful? Look!

After the musical prelude, the setting of the May Pageant begins as Alice in Wonderland discovers the May Pole, throne, and flowers, grows weary, and sits down to read her book. The Sandman then dances around her, making a magic dream ring as she falls asleep.

"She comes—she comes, our radiant queen." The May Queen ascends the throne with her court gathered around her. The pageant unfolds as each nursery rhyme character performs for the queen.

After the recessional of characters in the pageant and of the May Court, Alice in Wonderland arises from her sleep.

The pageant, the costuming, and the beauty of Montreat all joined in making this year's May Day one of the loveliest and most memorable ones here.