

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH

"The old order changeth, yielding place to new,
And God fulfills himself in many ways . . ."

So remarked Arthur in Tennyson's "Idylls of the King". So may we remark as another year draws to a close . . . "the old order changeth, yielding place to the new".

But let us consider the old order, the old staff. They have worked unselfishly, although they found it inconvenient at many times, to provide you with a paper of which you might be proud. This was the laying of the foundation. It is up to the new order, the new staff, to erect the building, a building which will withstand the storms and tempests of life.

As every builder knows, it is most important that the building be constructed with only the best materials. It is not less true in the case of a newspaper. One cannot always print only that which is pleasant to the eye or pleasing to the ear. One is, however unpleasant it may be, under an obligation to himself and to his readers to print the truth, and to print it accurately.

A building always reflects something of the personality of its builder. A newspaper will reflect the ideas and ideals of its editor, as well as those of its readers. If you want a picture of Montreat, read your school paper, for in it you will see yourself.

It has been said that nothing is sure but change. It is to be expected that the staff of a newspaper will change from year to year. The one thing that does not change is the conception of truth. May you create a paper which will be a monument to your school, your community, and your God.

"FOR A WHILE . . ."

CARMICHAEL SPEAKER—

As we come to the end of the year, we think back over all the friends that we have made here in Montreat. There have been many, but one in particular stands out in our minds—one who has always been ready to help us with the smallest problem, and one who has brightened the lives of those with whom she has associated. This is our Ann Bullard!

Among the many, many other things, chorus members will never forget the motherly affection she showed them on chorus tour, and how she comforted them on the "Hazard Road". We will never be able to find another "dramamine kid", or "brown pill promoter" to take her place.

Although we will miss her next year, we are happy that she will be continuing her work for the Lord as the Director of Christian Education at the Shenandoah Presbyterian Church in Miami, Fla.

Ann, we all appreciate the work that you have done, the interest you have shown, and the joy that you have shed here at Montreat. We are thankful that as Christian friends we never have to say good-bye. So, in saying "So-long for a little while", we want you to know that our love, our thoughts, and our prayers will continue to go with you wherever the Lord may lead you.

president of the college. The first president was Robert C. Anderson (1916-1947); the second was John Rupert McGregor (1947-1957); and the third was acting president Frank Lee Jackson (1957-1959).

The processional will include marshalls Brenda Overman, Susan Cooper, Beth Rose, and Faye Williams; around sixty delegates from other colleges and universities; representatives of learned societies and professional organizations; members of the faculty and Board of Trustees; and members of the graduating class.

Dr. John E. Richards, chairman of the Board of Trustees, will charge Dr. Davis, and then Dr. Davis will be inaugurated as president of the college.

Special music to be presented by the chorus is "Be Calm and Peaceful" by Bach.

Dean George Stockton will present the graduates, and they will then be awarded Associate in Arts and Associate in Science degrees by Dr. Davis.

Dr. Oliver Cromwell Carmichael, consultant for the Ford Foundation, will be the speaker for the inauguration and commencement program.

A luncheon in the Assembly Inn for guests, students, and faculty of the college will be held at 12:30 P.M. The public is cordially invited to attend the commencement events.

Sophomores Feted

by Beth Rose

The Freshman-Sophomore banquet was revealed to be an "Underwater Fantasy" last night, May 27, at Assembly Inn. It seems the freshmen were "swimming" with ideas when they planned the semi-formal affair, and with the help of Jimmy Hall as Master of Ceremonies, the "fishy" scheme uncovered many unforgettable 'gems' of the Sophomores' "buried treasures" at Montreat.

Dr. Davis was present and also the faculty joined in with the festive entertainment. The evening was made complete with the scrumptious meal and the presentation of a birthday gift to Miss Morris, the Freshman sponsor.

The big surprise followed the annual banquet when the freshmen and sophomore girls topped the evening or rather the gymnasium at a going-away slumber party.

It is a sad occasion when the sophomores have to leave, but the freshman banquet will remain as one of the happy memories at Montreat. The freshmen wish all the sophomores best wishes in the coming years!
