MONTREAT-ANDERSON COLLEGE

TUTORS FIRST FOR MAC

Robert Miller, Blanche Morrison, Linda Glasco, Jim Wilson

Montreat-Anderson begins a pilot program this year with tutors Robert Miller, Blanche Morrison, Linda Glasco, and Jim Wilson in the school's four large dormitories. According to Dr. Monroe, their tutoring will hopefully "raise the academic level and improve the academic atmosphere." He further stated that "it is the only program of its kind so far as I know." The cost is underwritten by the Developing Institutions grant MAC is receiving from the federal government.

Linda Glasco, an Erskine College graduate with a B. A. in psychology and education, says the new system is still in the experimental state. She resides in College Hall but emphasizes "we are available to all students, not just the ones where we stay." As for the duties the four have, she states, "I believe that we're a bridge between the faculty and the students."

Blanche Morrison in Montreat-Anderson Hall characterizes the program as "individually oriented." She stresses the tutors' help will be directed toward "particular problems the students have." Jim Wilson hopes the students will want to seek assistance. It is his wish that students not be required to see them. He says "We're not parole officers. Blanche and Jim are both graduates of St. Andrews Presbyterian College with bachelor's degrees in psychology.

The fourth tutor, Robert Miller is an Asheville-Biltmore College graduate with an A. B. in mathematics. He chose his present position over high school teaching duties because, as he said, "it would be more beneficial to me."

Blanche Morrison speaks for all concerned when she declares, "We're finding out what we're going to do as we go along." As for availability, they all agree they'll be around the dormitory most of the day. Monday through Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. two of the tutors will alternate holding an open study hall in Gaither Chapel. In addition, the four tutors will attend classes after securing permission from the professors involved. This is so they can familiarize themselves with what the teachers expect.
