Open House

By: Kathy McPherson

The unbelievable has happened! The corridors of M.A. Hall will be open to everyone, including the trustworthy males of Montreat, Monday night, December 8. They will be able to savor the artistic skill that all M.A. Hall girls have used in making their Christmas decorations. They will also be able to see many other fascinating features of the room decors. (Boys, this should be interesting!)

Beginning this festive occasion will be the serving of refreshments to the faculty and staff in the lobby of M.A. Hall from 7 O' Clock to 9 O' Clock.

Words of War

Too weak am I to win a war,
Too dumb to see what lies in store
For me - a soul that breathes the air,
And those - the ones that do not care.

The ones that march and show their signs
Of a foreign war's inflicting crimes.
They lean on spoken words of fools
To pacify their self-made rules.

It's for their cause and to them I say
Go visit and talk to those who pay
In blood and tears of human strife,
For tears and smiles of another's life.

quartet in concert

On Tuesday December 9, the Ciompi String Quartet of Duke University will give two concerts on the MONTREAT ANDERSON campus. The first performance will be at the 10:00 Chapel Hour and will feature the Montreat Anderson College Choir. In keeping with the Advent-Christmas season the College Choir will perform the opening chorus from Bach's Cantata No. 141, "Hear the Joyful News This Day." The Chorus will be accompanied by Thomas S. Stierwalt, organist, and the Ciompi Quartet. The second performance will be in Gaither Hall on the night of December 9 at 8:00 p.m.

The Ciompi String Quartet was organized in 1965 and appointed Duke University quartet-in-residence in 1966. The Quartet's most recent tour included performances in Germany and Italy.

The Augusta Chronicle said: "Augusta music lovers received the Ciompi Quartet with delighted enthusiasm---with brilliance, color and excitement, the high point of the concert was reached in the Quartet, Opus II, of Samuel Barber."

Critics of the Evening Star said: "To each work they brought musical insight, tone, beauty, and just the right amount of abandon---the quartet is capable of making a major contribution to the musical life of this country."

The four talented members of the Quartet are Giorgia Ciompi, for whom the quartet is named, violinist; Arlene Di Cecco, violinist; Julia Mueller, violist; and Luca Di Cecco, cellist.

Arturo Toscanini invited Ciompi to come to the U. S. in 1948 as a member of the NBC Symphony Orchestra. In that same year at the age of 25 Ciompi performed in Carnegie Hall. From 1949-1964 Ciompi was a member of the Albeneri Trio and in 1965 was appointed Artist-in-Residence at Duke University.

Giorgia Ciompi was born in Florence, Italy and by the age of 11 was performing in recitals both public and private. Ciompi has studied under such outstanding musicians as Boucherit, Enesco, and Alexanian.

Julia Mueller, violist, recipient of the Artist's Diploma from the Eastman School of Music, was formerly a member of the Rochester Philharmonic and National Symphony Orchestras and has been Professor of Music at Duke University since 1952.

Arlene Di Cecco, violinist, is a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, London. She was formerly a member of the Italian Chamber Orchestra, "San Pietro di Napoli," and a performing staff member of the South African Broadcasting Corporation.

Luca Di Cecco, cellist, is a graduate of Indiana University. He is a former Fulbright Scholar and a performing member of the Casals Master Class in Zermatt, Switzerland. Cecco is presently an Assistant professor in the Department of Music of Duke University.
