suspected subversives and put them in detention camps if he deems it necessary.

Concern over the bill has risen since the Nixon administration took office, especially after Assistant Attorney General Richard Kleindienst was quoted in ATLANTIC MONTHLY Magazine as favoring the use of the camps for some radicals. (He later denied having made the statement).

The Nixon Administration recommended, and the Senate agreed, that the provisions establishing the detention camps should be repealed. However, HISC chairman Richard Ichord (D.-Mo.), who feels radicals, especially the Black Panther Party, pose an imminent danger to the United States, first bottled up the bill, and then finally agreed to report out the new amendment only after considerable pressure from other committee members.

The non-discrimination clause was intended to assuage the fears of both Blacks and Japanese-Americans (who were rounded up during World War II). However, it would still allow the President to imprison a group of radicals, as long as he did not discriminate according to race, color, or ancestry.

There will be an attempt to amend the bill to bar all concentration camps when the bill reaches the floor of the House. If that fails, attempts will be made to find a compromise between the Senate and House versions in conference committees.

A PLEASANT FLASH ON 11 OCTOBER

11 October marked the birth of the annual Children's Dog Show in Asheville. The show was sponsored by the Xi Alpha Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi for the benefit of the Irene Wortham Day Care Center.

There was an age limit (10-15 years) of up to fifteen years, unfortunately. Some classes being judged were: "Dog With Longest Ears," (won by a very small boy with a very large Bassett), "Dog Looking Most Like Owner," etc., etc. The locally famous Farmer Russ served as master of ceremonies.

Everything here was typical. Typical people, typical dogs, a typical day. But we need more typical days! In the midst of laughter and barking was an unequivocal feeling of Americanism—even, perhaps, of Accelerating-Ashevilleism. There was mutual respect, curiosity, and fun. It was just like a political picnic without the politician. There were no policemen, and no pickets. I didn't even see an eighteen year-old trying to vote!

It was a good time to get yourself acquainted with some kids and dogs; it was a lazy day at the end of summer; it was a day to go out of your way to be just plain "nice."

SFA FORUM

The first Student-Faculty-Administration Forum of the year was held this past Wednesday, 14 October. The object of the meeting was to gather ideas from the participants for a hypothetical non-denominational Christian college, "Utopia University." Five areas were covered, among them being the academic and non-academic programs.

After several ideas were presented, the meeting took another direction. Mac Holt began the first round of a very interesting debate by asking President Davis about the room decoration rule and how it came into being. Dr. Davis replied that it was an interpretation of a rule that was already in the College handbook on page thirty-six. Several people commented on the validity of the rule. The president stated that the college had the right to make any rule that it deemed necessary. Peter Stack asked if there was any room for compromise between the students and the Administrative Council on certain rules. President Davis stated that in some cases compromise might be in order, but that the policies coming down from the trustees could not be compromised.

Dr. Davis said that the trustees were going to "a group of conservative people" in an attempt to raise $600,000 to insure the continued operation of the College. He therefore felt that the school's policies had to be conservative mold to attract and hold donations from these and other persons. The president felt that the movement among some student leaders to bring beer on campus could jeopardize his fund-raising efforts. He asked restraint from student leaders, as well as from the student body as a whole, in their demands for liberalizing the college.

President Davis stated that at least 100 students were not asked to return for the 1970-1971 academic year. He said that this was done in an attempt to bring
