

Controversy Characterizes Greybeard Production

By Christian Malone

Producer Brian Fuller and the Greybeard Players announced the cast for their drama doubleheader, which will take place April 24-26. He believes he has put together a fantastic cast for both plays, which will help both to be rousing successes.

Though he expects both plays to be excellent, Fuller also knows there will likely be some controversy over the plays, especially the second one which deals with material that, quite possibly, could offend some viewers.

Leading off the night will be The Application, a one-act comedy about what it takes to get into Heaven.

The play, which takes place in the waiting room of Heaven, was written by Montreat alum Jeffrey Reardon ('95).

The cast contains four parts. Junior Ashley Eckler will play the secretary in the waiting room; freshman Matt

McMurrin will play the grad student; SGA President, Hunt Briggs plays Charles Chillingworth, a 40-year old businessman; and freshman Alex Cervantes will take the stage as Rachel Staton, a young school teacher.

The play should turn out to be very comical, but at the same time, will have some underlying theology interwoven.

However, all feelings of comedy will disappear in the second play, The Stonewater Rapture by Doug Wright. Its plot is about gang rape, and about turning to God for help in the face of evil.

Junior Jeremy Witteveen will play

Whitney, a thin, pensive, 18-year old high school senior, while junior Melissa Brown will take on the role of Carlyle, a deeply religious virgin of the same age. Both feel they are taking on a tough assignment.

Dorm Noise Causes Complaints

By Daryl Bryant

Students have begun to complain about the noise level in the dorms. Although quiet hours have been established, many dorms continue to have problems.

Senior Davis resident, Chopper Souder commented, "There is too much noise after midnight and it is almost impossible for anybody to get to sleep before then on any given night. It aggravates me that some people don't respect other people. Especially those who live on the third floor who make too much noise that affects everyone below them."

The Student Handbook states that certain hours are to be established as quiet hours in the dorms. The study hours are from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and every night from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. Twenty-four hour quiet hours begin at 11:00 p.m. on the evening prior to reading day and continue through exams.

Giernacky Foresees Jubilee Success

By Wes Caldwell

Jubilee '97, a Christian conference for college students in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, will take place the weekend of February 21-23. Jubilee draws over two thousand students a year to its event at the Pittsburgh Hilton and Towers in downtown Pittsburgh.

"Jubilee is a chance to go and learn how to incorporate faith into all areas of life, and to participate in praise and worship with over two thousand other Christian students," explained Tom Oxenreider, one of two sponsors for the trip.

Kim Giernacky, the other sponsor, has high hopes for the weekend retreat. "I hope that Jubilee '97 will be a real bonding experience for the students. And that they may have a better understanding of how to integrate their faith into what they are learning in the classroom."

Some topics that will be discussed are how to integrate faith into business, science, social science, and education.

Rebecca Manley Pippert, who wrote Out of the Saltshaker and into the World, will be the main speaker. Those attending will have the opportunity to choose two seminars apart from the main speaker.

Entertainment will include a band from Kenya called Jubali Afrika. Jubali Afrika played last year at Jubilee '96 in one of several rooms including coffee houses, game rooms and other live bands.

Currently, there are about ten students planning to go, including Kelly Turnham, Zola Griffin, Jean Abernathy, and Amy Neal.

The cost is $130. Giernacky informed that there are scholarships available for those who might need them.

Anyone who would like to go or would like more information about Jubilee should contact either Oxenreider or Giernacky by February 19.
