

FROM THE EDITOR

Hi, guys!

Midterms are coming up (or maybe you've already had some)! Fun stuff, right? Luckily for us, the Huckleberry opened up just in time to be a great study spot complete with snacks and hot drinks (or just a great spot to procrastinate studying for said midterms-- not that I ever do that...).

Fall break is also coming up, though, and none too early! Keep The Whetstone in mind-- we'd love to hear about how you spend your break, and pictures are always nice. Whether you're going home or visiting friends, adventuring or studying, we want to hear about it. We may also upload pictures to our Facebook page and website.

Speaking of pictures, if you haven't already, don't forget to tag yourself and your friends in our Community Day pictures on our Facebook page!

Finally, you probably read the comments regarding the new dorm toilet paper dispensers on the front page. We included these comments last-minute because student reactions to the change have been so strong. Do you agree with the comments, or have a different perspective completely? Do you feel that this is a waste of money or a good update for the rooms? Send us a letter to either mcwhetstone@gmail.com or to MC Box 839 and let us know what you think!

Enjoy!
