

FROM THE EDITOR

Hi, guys!

We're back with our first issue of the semester! The response to our call for submissions was really good: better than the average for the start of the semester and very encouraging. We know there's still some confusion, anger, and sadness due to the recent layoffs and cuts. To help alleviate some common questions, Dr. Flowers and Dean of Students Charles Lance kindly met with students to answer those concerns; results of the Q&A session have been typed and are on page 7. We will publish more updates as needed-- send us any questions or comments you may have.

A little bit of news that we at the Whetstone have is that we have gotten brand new equipment to help writers and photographers. We have a few digital voice recorders and a camera that are available for you to use to prepare submissions. Find me or Heather Carr to sign out equipment-- we just need your name, the date you check it in and return it, the type and number of the equipment you borrowed (each is numbered on the bottom of the device), and your signature to loan them out. We hope this helps make the process easier for contributors and generates more content for our bi-weekly issues.

If you're interested in writing or taking photography but don't know what to cover, find Heather or I for project ideas-- we have a list! ;)

Also-- don't forget to join our Facebook page to catch updates and deadlines!

Best,

Imari Scarbrough
