Billy Graham's "My Answer"

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why was it necessary for Jesus Christ to die on the cross? It seems to me that if God really wanted to forgive us, all he would have to do is declare we are forgiven. -B.L.

DEAR B.L.: The reason is because sin is an offense to God, and must be punished. If there had been any other way for God to bring us salvation, I am sure he would have done so. But God is a God of justice, and because his Law had been broken he also had to execute his judgement.

Imagine, for example, that you had broken a law of some sort -- perhaps you had been speeding and ran into a police car. You have clearly broken the law, and because of that you are arrested and brought before the judge in the courtroom.

There can only be one verdict: Guilty. Suppose that the penalty for this was a $500 fine.

But suppose also that the judge for some reason stepped down from his bench, reached into his pocket, and then paid the fine himseif! Then justice would have been satisfied -the fine would have been paid for breaking the law. And yet he also would have shown mercy to you by paying the fine himself.

But God has also paid the penalty! Jesus Christ, God's only Son, was completely innocent of all sin, and yet he took upon himself your sins and mine, and willingly took the penalty for our sins by dying on the cross. We deserved to die, but he died in our place.

Soybean Markets National Grain Market

New crop harvest pressure forced sorghum prices lower. Lower cash corn markets contributed to the market weakness. Kansas City market declined 12 cents to 4.13 and is 1.41 per hundred pounds below last year.....Soybean markets moved mostly higher as frost threat over much of the northern soybean area prompted buyers to cover nearby needs. Actual frost damage is unknown but thought to be minimal. The warm front trailing the cold front is expected to force maturity of soybean, corn and sorghum in northern areas. Chicago No. 1 yellow soybeans in hopper cars rose 71/2 cents to 6.63 but fell 1.31 per bushel under year ago market. Minneapolis flaxseed declined 30 cents to 6.85, down 75 cents per bushei from last year. Slow processor demand forced the market lower. Expanded sunflower seed crush pushed Duluth market 35 cents higher at 11.25 per hundred pounds.
