ROOFING

Keeping your roof in top repair (replacing shingles, patching holes) reduces air and water leakage which damages insulation beneath it.

ENCLOSURES

Enclose open porches, car ports or any house extensions to act as a buffer against cold air... keep the house warmer inside.

CAULKING

Check for drafts by holding a flame 1" from where doors and windows meet their frames. If the flame moves, or goes out, then it's time to caulk!

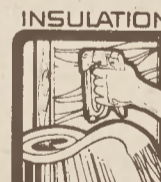

GUTTERS

Gutters and drain pipes protect the outside structure of your house from water damage which could cut down its insulating properties.

INSULATION

Insulation works by resisting heat loss. You can save by insulating any surface that separates heated spaces from unheated spaces in your home.

PLYWOOD

Maintain the efficiency and strength of the enclosures you build by using waterproof plywood, which can wear longer.

FIREPLACES

Fireplaces work best when installed with energy efficient ducting built in... for the purpose of conducting more heat into the room.

INSULATING GLASS

This is made double thick, with a layer of gas in between... to increase the insulating value... decrease the amount of air escaping.

You Can Plan On Us to Help You Finance It...

Loans are our business. When you include us in your home improving plans... we'll do our best to turn your plans into ready cash. Just stop in and speak to our friendly loan officer. On approval, he'll work out a personal payment schedule at convenient terms for you.
