NURSE CORPUS NEWS

CONDUCTED BY MISS ELIZABETH P. UZELMEIER

WILL GIVE THEIR CHEER UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE

"We want to stay on the job until the last boy is gone" say both Mrs. Theodocia Baldwin, in charge of the Red Cross building at the base hospital and Miss Marie Fox Wait, librarian and also stationed in the Red Cross building.

"We came here to help the boys and we want to be sure that our full duty has been performed before we leave" the women added, when talking to a Caduceus representative.

Even more cheerful than the cozy comfort offered by the beautifully appointed Red Cross building itself is the ministry of these two women who have bended every effort to make the patients and enlisted men of the base hospital happy. They have planned and worked and smiled without ceasing and their efforts will never be forgotten by those who have been touched by the ministry of their service.

FAVORABLY IMPRESSED.

During the week we were favored with a most pleasant visit having as our guest Miss R. Inde Albaugh, Inspector, Army School of Nursing from the Surgeon General's office, and expressed herself as being most favorably impressed with conditions here.

STOP OPERATIONS.

Orders have been received at the U. S. Army base hospital, Camp Greene, that operations are to be performed only for emergency cases. The same is true of the dental department of that hospital.

Miss Martha Cain, Reserve Nurse, Army Nurse Corps, has arrived for duty from Waverly, N. Y.

BONES IS BONES.

Recently the Inspector of the Army School of Nursing paid us a visit and inspected the School building. Needless to say "Frazzles" participated in the tour; shortly after leaving the cupboard wherein the school equipment is stored, certain sounds of a crunching nature emanated from the region of "Frazzles"—luckily the Inspector's back was turned, for one of us—stooping down extracted from Frazzles' mouth with some difficulty and great opposition from him the astragalus of our disarticulated skeleton.

Miss Los L. Turner is spending a ten day leave at her home in Huntington, W. Va.

THE LITTLE THINGS.

The things that count are the little things,

That together make the whole;
The merry laugh, the heart that sings,
The blithe and gladsome soul;
The lending of a helping hand,
A smiling greeting given,
All tend to brighten life's highway
That leads from earth to heaven.
