REV. SYKES SPEAKS

Rev. Tom A. Sykes, astor of the Friends church, delivered the second of the series of talks by the local ministers, Monday morning, February 2, before the high school. His subject was "How to Think."

Rev. Mr. Sykes opened his subject with the Bible verse "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." He illustrated this with an example of an athletic team. A player must think the school is honoring him and not be honoring the school, for if he gets this idea he will begin to lose and become a poor player, then the team begins to lose if all the players assume this attitude.

"Everyone must think something either noble or innoble," said the speaker. If you wish to give anything worth while to the world you must put your thoughts into action.

Rev. Sykes gave two illustrations of what two men's thinking has given to the world. Archimedes by inventing the lever was able to lift a burden which 100 other men could not move. When Edison was a little boy working with his experiments, people thought him crazy and ignorant, but he kept right on and invented incandescent light, which has meant much to people all over the world.

In closing the speaker stressed the point to think and think in the right direction.

CELEBRATE LEE

Lee-Jackson program was given in chapel Thursday morning by Room 20, directed by Miss Harris.

The scripture was read by Lee Annie Walker followed by a song, "Dixie," which was sung by the whole school.

Frances White gave a sketch of Robert E. Lee's life, bringing out the most important events. Lee's farewell address to his army was given by Norman Petty. Mary Agnes Ranson gave a number of lessons that might be got from Lee's life. Nell Jones followed with a sketch of Stonewall Jackson's life.

"Skinny" White Saunders Dallas, and Spivis Allred sang, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and the audience joined in on the chorus. This was followed by a poem, "Land of the South," recited by Ossie Dickens.

REV. COBLE MAKES FIRST TALK

Rev. C. P. Coble delivered the first talk of a series of 12 to be given to the students by the ministers of High Point Monday, January 26.

"First Things First" was the subject Mr. Coble discussed. The fundamental things of life, he stated are what all people should acquire. But do not put out all your energy in getting material things for your happiness.

Mr. Coble gave a motto by which

GIRLS LOSE TO LEAKSVILLE

SCORE 39-29

After running up a substantial lead in the first half, the local girls' basketball team allowed the Leaksville highs to come from the rear and grab a fast exhibition 39-29 at the Y. M. C. A. last night. The swift passing of the Leaksville sextet and the wizardly goal shooting of Elizabeth Gunn featured the game.

At the close of the first quarter the High Point girls held an eight-point lead on their rivals. The score was 15-7. Hutchison was pitching goals in clock-work fashion, missing but one or two trials.

The Leaksville guards seemed unable to get the ball away from local forwards.

The visiting team speeded up after the rest period at the half. Elizabeth Gunn broke into her characteristic stride, caging the ball from all positions. The opposing guards played so swiftly that the local forwards were unable to get their hands on the ball long enough to make a creditable tally at the goal.

Hutchison was the star for the High Point outfit. She pitched nine field goals and five fouls, and played a live game at center.

Elizabeth Gunn is the best forward seen on the local court this season. She played that night with speed and accuracy. Her cleverness in getting away from her guards was a topic of much comment among the spectators.

All players on both teams played bang-up basketball. Without doubt the finest game of the winter was seen last night.

Twice champions in two years, the Leaksville six looks good for another year of state honors.

STUDENTS TAKE EXAMS

High Point high school is not a home for feeble minded. All those who do not believe this either, missed examinations, or crammed so hard the nights before that they could not get out for the occasion.

The old building was the scene of much excitement during their memorable period. Little groups of folks stood around in the yord, talking in low tones as though they were attending the funeral of "Old Man Education." Inside the living tomb were few decorations. The walls were barren, the desks were adorned with tablets and pencils.

After an hour and a half at each setting the individual would leave with a much wiser, yet more solemn look on his face. What he had gone through was felt by himself alone.

One special group of people during these days had an enjoyable time. It was the teachers. They had the old smile working strong. It was an occasion of much pleasure to them.

One boy nearly lost his mind during the "contest." Because his writing tool had become clogged, he thought it meant failure for him. His shouts, "Give me a drink of ink, I'm a fountain pen," were heard throughout the building.

One pupil coming off a test was heard to whisper to himself.

A good talk with yourself will show you where you have failed, and how to overcome it in the months to come. "Exams are over once more," but they are coming again.

THE MAID AND JIM MAKE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Jim has asked "The Pointer" to announce to the girls that he did not intend to make any of them maid about getting paint on the windows. He meant it only as a joke.

The maid also asked to announce to the girls that she wished they would not spit on the floor. She said, "if dey spit on the floor here dey will spit on de floor at home."
