UNCLE SAM HAS BEEN GOOD TO HIS SOLDIERS

The insistency of the Bonus marchers in hanging around Washington City and constantly nagging for the full payment of the bonus certificates has become to be very annoying to the people of Washington because of the unsanitary conditions prevailing among these campers and by their frequent parades with all their noise and carrying on public demonstrations in an effort to create sympathy for them and the cause for which they represent.

By the insistency of these bonus marchers it would seem that they fail to give any consideration at all to the fact that they are the best cared for and highest paid war veterans in the world, a fact which should make them take off their hats to Uncle Sam as all true Americans took off their hats to these veterans when they came home from the foreign battle lines with victory written in their trails where they made new inroads across the German battle lines.

All these things cannot be forgotten and should not be underestimated by our people. But the soldiers of other countries underwent a longer struggle and suffered even greater hardships perhaps than did Uncle Sam's men, and yet they do not draw anything like the pay from their governments that Uncle Sam's men draw; however we do not hear as much of a clamor by the soldiers across the seas in their efforts to bleed their countries for advanced payments on war claims.

Uncle Sam has been exceedingly good to his soldier boys and if there should be those who feel otherwise about it let them read the following comparative figures which have recently been published in the "Public Pulse" column of the Greensboro Daily News: America gave generously of money so long as she had it to give—an average of $223 per ex-soldier this year. Compared with other countries: England, $26; France, $33; Canada, $98; we have nothing to be ashamed of.

REPUBLICANS IN SOUTH START A REAL CAMPAIGN

Organizing for an intensive campaign in the South this year, the Republicans plan to carry their fighting to the hitherto rock-ribbed Democratic states of Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina.

These states have been Democratic since just after the War Between the States, and the general elections in November have merely ratified Democratic nominees for office. Even four years ago, when Hoover broke the "Solid South" for the first time in many years, Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi followed their traditional Democratic tendencies. Mississippi and South Carolina increased their Democratic majorities.

Democrats say the entire South and the border states will give big majorities for Roosevelt and Garner in November, but the Republicans dispute this and say they not only expected to hold the four states of Florida, North Carolina, Virginia and Texas, which they captured in 1928, but hope to add others to the Hoover and Curti column.

The campaign for the Republican national ticket will be backed by fights for senatorial and congressional seats throughout the South and in many instances for county and state offices.

Mississippi and South Carolina will have Republican candidates for Congress in each district to oppose the Democratic nominee. This will be the first time in nearly half a century that the Republican party in Mississippi has entered a candidate in each district. The candidates of the party in that state have signified their intention of running as "drys", basing their support of prohibition on the plank adopted by their state conventions. This opposed repeal of the 18th Amendment and modification of the Volstead act. They declared their allegiance to the national party.

JUSTICE'S LETTER

(From Union Republican)

Mr. Editor:—In its issue of August 3, 1931, the Winston-Salem Journal in commenting on Mr. Maxwell's speech at Selma before the Kiwanis Club said Mr. Maxwell defends the Legislature and in its comments the Journal says "constant and persistent efforts to belittle and discredit the enactments of the recent General Assembly" were given a decided rebuke by Commissioner of Revenue Maxwell.

Governor Gardner did the very same thing in an article defending the last Legislature which in my opinion was about the worst the State was ever cursed with which opinion seems to jibe with that of the Greensboro News which uses this expression in regard to calling a special session of the Legislature. "In Governor Gardner's statement there is no suggestion of the horror of horrors, an extraordinary session."

In an article in the Greensboro News of September 30, 1931, we find this heading: "A. J. Maxwell asks the public to co-operate in this crisis. Gubernatorial candidate says state must elect General Assembly and administration committee to thorough readjustment of tax burdens."

This shows how quickly Mr. Maxwell's opinion of the work of the last Legislature had changed from praise in August to condemnation in September which change was manifested all the way through his speeches in his campaign for Governor this year which, by the way, were the most sensible made by any candidate for Governor in the Democratic primary.

And now the Governor finds himself in a "devil of a fix," as reported in the Greensboro News of last Saturday, facing a deficit of six and a half million dollars after spending the sixty-two million dollars which he said some time ago was the cost of our state government now as compared with the cost of twenty million dollars in 1926.

This cost of sixty-two million dollars with its deficit is not all the story for in addition to this the parents have had to pay two million dollars extra for their children's school books that could have been purchased for about one million dollars. How long will our people continue to travel this road to bankruptcy?

JUSTICE.

CORONER OF FORSYTH CHANGES HIS MIND.

The Forsyth county coroner was roundly berated by several state papers for the manner in which he acted in the Reynolds killing affair. He first pronounced it a case of suicide and closed the books, then changed his mind and ordered an inquest and tried to hold it privately, but public pressure was too great and he had to get away from that position finding there was no law for private inquests. The Forsyth coroner and the Davidson coroner should have their pictures taken together and sold for the benefit of the poor and needy. The Davidson county coroner pulled a boner in the Sheriff Leonard shooting several months ago when he failed to swear the two lawyers engaged in the affair, on the Bible, but just allowed them to hold up their hand and it is said on this technicality the two lawyers who are under indictment for perjury may be freed.—Union Republican.

THE MAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE

Mt. Clemens (Mich.) Monitor
The sound of the gavel had hardly opened the session of Congress, when President Hoover began pouring in constructive measures with rapid fire succession. Practically every worthwhile and sound move to battle depression and restore business had its origination in the White House.

No President ever gave more of his time or more of his energy in efforts to solve that problem. In fact, never before in the history of the nation, has the government applied means so extensively in dealing with an economic condition.

His political opponents, who attempt to make out that Mr. Hoover lacks the courage to face an issue, haven't a leg to stand on.

Who has more courageously taken a stand on such controversial issues as the bonus, economic relief, the tax bill or the tariff?

The President has stood as a guardian of the nation's purse strings, and every effort at raiding the Federal treasury has been riddled by Mr. Hoover with denunciations in no uncertain terms—although he realized on occasion after occasion that he might be sacrificing his political future.

HEARD AROUND THE COURT HOUSE

Clifford Frazier, of Greensboro, Republican nominee for Governor, opened his campaign on Saturday, July 16th, with a speech at Newton, Catawba County. Judging from reports, his speech, which was largely an appeal to the Christian men and women and all good citizens of North Carolina to rally every ounce of their strength in support of those who had taken a firm stand in favor of safety, sobriety, decency and good morals, in government as well as in the home, has been well received throughout the state.

He warned the people of the state against the intolerable conditions that would prevail with a return of the saloon.

The nominee took issue with those who assert that prohibition has increased drinking. Alluding to Robert R. Reynolds, of Asheville, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, he remarked, "Mr. Reynolds tells us that he doesn't advocate the return of liquor because it has 'never left us.' Neither has typhoid fever been eradicated. It has not left us but the diligence of our health authorities has greatly reduced the number of its victims. Would we cease for a moment our efforts to control this deadly disease simply because we had not heretofore been able to totally eradicate it?"

Mr. Frazier said that from 1910 to 1914 the approximate average yearly consumption of distilled liquor was 22.43 gallons for every man, woman and child in the United States, or 100 gallons for an average family. Since prohibition the per capita consumption of distilled liquors, light wines and beers has been reduced to about seven gallons, or one-third of the pre-prohibition consumption. In 1908 there was one liquor dealer for every 333 men, women and children in this country and one for every 74 families.

Mr. Frazier quoted "the director of prohibition" as presenting figures to eschew for enforcement of prohibition in the last 12 years "a total cost of $284,156,524, with total collections from fines, penalties and revenue from lawfully distilled and fermented liquors of $584,588,884, a net balance of $264,432,360. Hence, it cost nothing to enforce the law during the period."

Mr. Friziar, who is a Quaker, graduated at the State University more than 20 years ago, being a classmate of Dr. Graham who is now at the head of that great educational institution. After leaving the University he located in Greensboro, where he has since built up a lucrative law practice. He has never pushed himself forward in politics, and many times when urged by friends to accept political honors, he has declined, with statements to the effect that he preferred to remain a private in the ranks of the Republican party.

This year when the demand became overwhelming he agreed to accept the nomination and make the race for Governor. He is very popular wherever known.

DEMOCRATS NOTHING TO OFFER

Labor World
The working people of the country and industry in general are more interested in something constructive that means jobs, wages and profits.

Strangely, the Democratic party has completely ignored labor in its platform. It has ignored all protection for the wage earner's salary. Tariff for revenue only is offered, which, of course, means starvation wages. There is nothing in the platform about immigration; in fact, it is silent on the subject, probably because Tammany and Frank Hague both want the bars let down.

No constructive plan is offered to rehabilitate industry, and unemployment relief, either by a dole or jobs, is also ignored.

The coal miner, the millworker, those in the textile industry, copper, oil and lumber are not offered a single thing, except tariff reduction.

The Democratic party has staked its all apparently on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

It is true that the American Federation of Labor has in its program the return of light wine and beer, but everything else that the A. F. of L. advocates and stands for, Democratic party is silent upon in its platform. It is, therefore, quite apparent that the big interests or Wall Street dictated the platform, which is in line with a policy to squeeze wages down to the lowest point in many years.

The farmers also are offered little or nothing and they are already, like labor, up in arms. The issue of

Black-Draught Clears Up Sluggish Feeling

"I have used Theford's Black-Draught for constipation for a long time," writes Mrs. Frank Champion, of Wynne, Ark. "If I get up in the morning feeling dull and sluggish, a dose of Black-Draught taken three times a day will cause the feeling to pass away, and in a day or two I feel like a new person. After many years of use we would not exchange Black-Draught for any medicine."
P. S.—If you have CHILDREN, give them the new, pleasant-tasting SYRUP of Theford's Black-Draught.

jobs and bread and butter is the great issue before the whole world and it cannot be cast aside for the issue of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment with which Congress alone can deal.

Timely Farm Questions Answered At State College

Q. What is the best spray for bitter rot in apples and when should I spray?

A. A mixture containing two pounds of copper sulfate, also known as bluestone, three pounds of builders lime, and fifty gallons of water is recommended. Any soft soap or skim milk added to the mixture at the rate of one-half pound to each fifty gallons of mixture will give greater spreading and sticking qualities. The spray should be applied right away and at sufficient intervals throughout the summer in order to maintain a good coating on the trees.

Q. When should the fall crop of cabbages be planted and what varieties are best?

A Fall cabbage is primarily a crop suited to the Eastern half of the State due to climate conditions. Plants for the crop should be set about the middle of August for most of the Coastal Plain area. There are many varieties that have proven satisfactory but "Succession" and "All Seasons" have given best results.

Q. Is it too late to set sweet potatoes for a good yield this season?

A. As a market crop—yes. The yields from late plantings, especially in dry seasons, are not large enough to be profitable from a commercial standpoint. For the purpose of raising seed stock for next year, however, especially where the market grade is not a factor, vine cuttings may be set at this time with good results.

By producing all of his poultry feed at home with the exception of fish or meal, John O. Smith of Clay County says he is making money selling eggs at 12 cents a dozen.

Money From Hogs Expected This Fall

Farmers who have hogs for sale during the next few months may expect to make some profit on the animals. This applies especially to those who have followed the system of feeding hogs with surplus corn supplemented by protein feed and minerals.

"We fully expect those men who have followed our system of converting their surplus corn into pork and who have animals ready for sale during the next two months to make some money," says W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist at State College. "Feeding remonstrations now under way show that the animals are returning from 65 to 70 cents for the corn they are consuming when sold at the present Richmond prices. There appears to be slight chance of an early decline in price."

Mr. Shay gives as his reason for this, the fact that there was 64,656,000 less pounds of pork in cold storage on July 1 than on June 1, one month previous. The amount of such storage was 43,461,000 pounds less than on July 1 one year ago.

Then too, he says, the number of hogs received at the 63 principal markets during the past June was 10.8 percent less than in June 1931 and 23.6 percent less than the June average for the past five years. The stocker and feeder shipments were 28.4 and 45.4 percent less than one year ago and an average of the last five years, respectively.

"We are still of the opinion that the man who will get into the hog feeding game in North Carolina and stay with it year in and year out will make a more substantial profit from his corn than by cash crop farming," Shay says. "The man who gets in or out according to the market however, will always be doing both too late for greatest advantage. I would like to see much of the great corn crop of North Carolina sent to market as pork to the advantage of the land as well as the owned."

Catawba County farmers are expecting to harvest an excellent sweet potato crop this season. Additional curing houses are being constructed to house the crop.
