So That's The Law!

By ELLIOTT H. MARRUS

LAW MAKERS

Throughout the history of the world there have been 16 men who as law makers and law interpreters have had the greatest influence over the rules which have governed the conduct of civilized man .... Perhaps the first of these lived 3200 years before Christ. His name was Menes, a King of ancient Egypt who gave that land its first set of laws .... Hammurabi the King of Babylonia, in 2100 B.C. promulgated a series of laws and regulations, many of which have been adopted by our legal system. This, the oldest collection of laws still in existence, had as its prime purpose, the protection of the weak and poor ... Moses who lived about 1500 years before Christ, created the Mosaic Code containing 613 statutes, most of which are applicable today. Moses is also chedited with the ten commandments which are accepted by people of all religions. The laws of Moses stressed the necessity of morality and also that all men, regardless of their wealth and position, were equal before the law. (to be continued)

ALCOHOLOMETER

Connecticut police have a new instrument for testing the degree of drunkedness of drivers. It is a portable chemical laboratory into which the subject breathes for a few minutes. The machine registers the precise degree of intoxication. Soon there probably will be home models for wives to use when their husbands come rolling home in the wee hours of the morning, swearing, "I haven't touched a drop."

CROOKS

We have never heard of any legal action in which a husband accused his wife of stealing from him, although we do know of many stories in which the "little woman" rifles his pockets while the poor unsuspecting husband sleeps. The women aren't so soft-hearted however, for there is a case of a wife in New York State who had her husband jailed on a

Police communication in the famous New Jersey resort is so personalized that practically the only way one of the "human radio stations" can be recognized is by the fact that he wears tiny head phones, sometimes only one. Attached to the officer's belt is a small black leather case, so small it could not contain a radio set. Yet that is just what it does contain. A concealed wire connects the Lilliputian set with the head phones.

This personalized system is the product of the genius of a radio-minded Atlantic City patrolman, Lawrence H. Smith. As a wire-less enthusiast, he had a vision of Not automobile radio, or motor-cycle radio. It is personal radio—ten officers because he would be problem and the present system is the result. The set consists of a compact "B" battery, a small flashlight battery, and a tiny 3-tube radio amplifier. Its total weight is less than two pounds.

The sets are worn at present only by motorcycle officers. The next step will be the extension of the system to include patrolmen. If the scheme works half as well as it has to date, Atlantic City is going to be a very tough Summer—or Winter—resort for crooks.

Smith is now sitting up nights trying to figure out ways to make the set still smaller, lighter, more powerful. As to power, the present range is pretty good. Occasional signals have come from all parts of the United States, even as far away as California.

Republicans To Have Farm Price Of Cotton Is Big Time At Ocracoke Not Retail Price Factor

The improved farm prices of cotton the past several months may not be considered determining factors in the relatively increased prices of finished cotton goods, says E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State

"Rather," Floyd reports, "the increased 'spread' of profit to the coton manufacturer has been tagged as responsible for the rapid increase

"While the farm price of cotton was moving up three cents a pound between June, 1940, and June, 1941, mill margins for cotton manufacture were moving up 11 cents a pound. Last May, when a consumer bought an ordinary cotton shirt, he paid less than nine cents to the farmer who spent a whole year in producing the cotton that went to make the shirt. even less than the laundry price for washing the garment once.

This year, for the first time in the history of the nation's oldest "money rop" the farmer has a government guaranteed price for cotton under the AAA loan program.
