Conservation Plan Will Help Farmers

The 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program offers assistance to farmers in seeding winter peas, vetch, crimson clover, ryegrass and also in establishing permanent pastures from the seedings of Ladino clover, fescue and orchard grass. The program also offers assistance for agriculture lime and for fertilizer materials to be applied this fall on the above crops.

Several dealers within the county and also out of the county have signed agreements to furnish the above materials to farmers on the purchase order to be used in carrying out conservation practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program. All farmers are urged to take full advantage in this program in building and maintaining the fertility of their soil.

Purchase orders are now being issued at the PMA Office in Smithfield for the different winter legumes mentioned above, pasture grasses and lime and fertilizer materials. The time for seeding winter legumes and for establishing permanent pastures is fast approaching and farmers should come into the PMA Office in the very near future and receive the prior approval for the practices they wish to carry out this fall.

Please keep in mind that in order to be eligible for payment on any agricultural conservation practices, prior approval must be obtained before the practice is begun.

his records complete and up to date as the ginning season advances in case part or all of the above requested records may be needed.

We are confident that ginners realize the importance of a high degree of compliance with acreage allotments and marketing quotas in order that such a program may be successful. Ginners are invited to call upon their local PMA Committees for any assistance they may need in connection with the cotton marketing quota program.

Pre-Induction Call Delinquents Listed

The Johnston County Draft Board has received its third pre-induction call since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The latest call is for 50 registrants to report to Fayetteville on Monday, September 11, for pre-induction physical and mental examinations. The registrants will be ordered to report to the draft board office in Smithfield at 6:30 a. m., to go to Fayetteville by bus. Draft board officials announced that in order to meet this new pre-induction call it will be necessary to dip into the 22 year olds. The two previous calls were filled by men from 23 to 25 years old.

Delinquents who fail to answer the induction call will be submitted to the federal district attorney and subjected to prosecution. Following is a list of the delinquents with the addresses on file at the draft board:

Whites—Akrl G. Allen of Route 1, Angier, Chester E. Edwards of Route 2, Four Oaks, Erwin L. Pate of Route 2, Clayton, Bobby W. Pittman of Route 1, Smithfield, Franklin J. Radford of Selma, Paul C. Sanders of Four Oaks, John Smith, Jr., of Route 1, Smithfield, James Thomas, Jr., of Route 2, Smithfield, James R. Harris of Smithfield, Jasper Andrew Sanders of Route 1, Clayton, Thomas McLearn of Route 1, Clayton and James Harrington of Route 1, Smithfield.

Program to Help All Handicapped Youth

North Carolina has again joined a nationwide program to secure better educational facilities for handicapped and exceptional children. This summer more than 100 teachers, supervisors, and principals, were enrolled in North Carolina institutions of higher learning in courses designed to help them in their regular classrooms, or in special classes for handicapped children within the school. With this newly attained knowledge, they will go back to their schoolrooms this fall with a better understanding of the child who must cope with special handicaps along with their schoolwork. More than half of these professional people took courses in speech pathology and speech correction. Other areas of study were the Exceptional Child; Mentally Retarded Child; Methods of Teaching Handicapped Children; plus regular courses in mental health, child psychology, etc.

Much of this training was made possible through scholarships offered to teachers by the North Carolina League for Crippled Children, your "Easter Seal Agency," whose special interest was in the field of special education. Scholarships totaling $740.00 were awarded to seven of these professional people.

Dr. Clyde Erwin, State Superintendent of Education, has estimated that there are 85,000 handicapped or exceptional children of school age in North Carolina, and has also pointed out that during this past school year there were only nineteen specially trained teachers placed in the public schools throughout the state through the Special Education Division. Teachers are being added to this number just as fast as they are sufficiently trained and money is appropriated by the Legislature for this purpose.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation to each and every one for every kind thought and deed shown us during my sickness and stay in Duke Hospital. May God's richest blessings be bestowed upon you all.
