Last Minute Bulletins

JIM IS SICK

Jim (James Johnson), Junior High's janitor, who for so many years has kept the building warm, clean and in good working order, is now out of commission himself. It is necessary for him to have a serious operation and he is waiting word from Veterans' Hospital in Fayetteville for admittance. The teachers, under Miss Dickson's sponsorship, contributed a purse of money to help see Jim through this difficult time.

Miss Esther Free has held the position as office secretary at Junior High since the resigning of Miss Juanita Hedrick in May. Miss Free had attended the local schools and served on the Junior Pointer staff while in Junior High. At high school she graduated valedictorian of the senior class. She was a sophomore at High Point College, where she was taking a business course before coming to Junior High.

Students who have participated in Student Council activities have counted their scores for the year, and those students who have over two hundred points are: Donald Thurber, Carolyn Andrews, Barbara Lee, Lorene Kivett and Bill McGuinn. The recognition service for those who have served in Student Council will be held tomorrow.

Junior Pointer Receives First Class Honor Rating From Scholastic P.A.

Participating in the thirty-fourth All-American Critical Service of the National Scholastic Press Association, the JUNIOR POINTER received a first place honor rating.

This year the JUNIOR POINTER was rated with approximately 1,250 school papers. The significance of the numerical levels within which these papers fell is as follows: four, no honors; three, fair; two, good; one, excellent.

In winning first class honors this year, the paper was judged very good and excellent in vitality and originality of style, attractiveness and balance of make-up, the constructive quality of editorials, and the forcefulness of the sports stories.

Once before in its eighteen-year-old life, has the JUNIOR POINTER achieved a first class honor rating. That happened in 1941 when Ella Page Harrison was editor and Mrs. Ross was editorial sponsor.

The new Secretary of Junior High—Joan Crowder has been active as a secretary in various clubs and homerooms. Others running for secretary and treasurer were Ann Face and Helen Jacobs.

Joann Ronk, of room —, who won over Sally Trepke, Betty Jean Summers, Marie Board and Mona Rae Pennington, for the office of Chairman of Public Relations, has been in charge of many parties and programs. She has been on many party planning committees.

The newly elected editor of the Junior Pointer, Mary Lou Dillon, has contributed articles to the Junior Pointer many times this year. She is from room 103. Diane Waggoner, who also ran for Editor-in-Chief, will be Mary Lou's Associate Editor.

These new officers will be installed at the beginning of school next year.

They will succeed Dot Kendall, president; Donald Thurber, vice-president; Carolyn Murray, secretary; and Marilyn Robinette, editor of Junior Pointer.

WHY?

Only four hundred and fifty students out of thirteen hundred exercised the one great privilege of a democracy—voting. WHY?

Home Rumoring . . .

By the Editor

A reg'lar ole summer picnic was enjoyed by room 108 recently at the city lake and, from all reports, they must've had a pretty fine time.

Under the supervision of Miss Helen Young, room 116 has organized a class newspaper called "Buzzing Around 116." Please, we can't stand competition!

Robert Lee, 110, has had a G.I. haircut. Not only to keep with the current fad but also to save him from the inconvenience of having Miss Furr pull it out.

Room 5's pride and joy is Betty Floyd, who has made all A's this year! She tells us her good luck comes from not looking at her report card until after she gets home.

Elizabeth Lewis of room 107, has had the distinction of, (1) being the only student in her room who hasn't been absent or tardy and (2) having made the most book reports.

Champion, after a recent spelling bee held in room 3, was Lilly Jane Hudson.

Say, has anyone noticed 215's fine behavior during assemblies lately? What's your strategy, Miss Gurley?
