Three Minute Games For Your Parties

Place in conspicuous places in the room twelve objects that suggest names of persons, titles of books, or names of places. A picture of a church on a hill may suggest the name "Churchill"; a lump of coal, the book "If Winter Comes"; a drawing of an island with a man standing alone, "The Isle of Man"; a glass near a sign post showing "Go" may suggest "Glasgow"; the picture of a girl running with a girl's name might be construed to mean "Mary" or "Jane" Rush; a shoe in one spot and a horn in another may suggest shoe-horn. Draw a picture of two barns to suggest as name; a cat on a log for "catalog." Such words as Rocky Mount, cargo, Durham, Wilson, Georgetown, and many others may be easily used for the game, by any hostess who uses a few pictures, a few objects and a little imagination. Offer a prize to the person who finishes the game first.

Puzzles are also interesting. Try these:

1. If a Negro maid accidentally tripped over a Persian rug and dropped a large platter of turkey at a dinner party what five countries would be represented?
  2. In a certain word you may take two letters from five and leave one. What is the word?
  3. Twenty-six odd fellows lived together two thousand years ago and all of these brothers, notwithstanding their age are living together to this day. No one will dispute the fact that they are all very clever; they live together—great and small, and have got one eye among them all. Who are they?
- Make a spelling list of ten words. Distribute papers. Require the persons spelling:
1. To use the letter "f" in the place of "s".
  2. "x" instead of "g" in Dwight Eisenhower
  3. "m" instead of "n" in England
  4. "f" instead of "o" in Booker Washington
  5. "p" instead of "s" in Christmas
  6. "f" instead of "s" in Easter
  7. "x" instead of "e" in Federation
  8. "f" instead of "s" in Convention
  9. "x" instead of "g" in Negro
  10. "m" for "n"; "f" for "o" in Lincoln.

INDUSTRY AN ASSET

Trifling actions affect a man's credit. The sound of your hammer at five in the morning or nine at night heard by a creditor makes him easy six months longer.—Benjamin Franklin.

The Scriptures teach us the best way of living, the noblest way of suffering, and the most comfortable way of dying.—Flavel.
