TRIP

- To render advisory opinions to the President of the U. S. A.
- Issue memorandums to heads of departments in Washington.
- Make surveys.
- Hold series of area conferences with government agencies.
- They report to the White House rather than to the public.

He stated that progress is being made, for in these days the world is shrinking and we are neighbors if not brothers yet. There is an impact of movement for freedom of all people. Let us not be weary in well doing. "Remember that it is the service of the maimed few that the way to Heaven is found."

All of this proved women can take a decisive part in community progress by assuming active leadership and every delegate must have left with that in mind.

A community is built up and advanced by ideas in the minds of people.

REPORT

The time element eliminated the parade of states, however state contributions were made.

An evening with the National Association of Colored Girls provided wonderful entertainment and an inspiration to increase interest in the work with girls in junior clubs. Outstanding were orations delivered by six young ladies from different states based on some phase of Civil Rights. Other numbers included musical selections both vocal and instrumental, ballets, majorettes, two presentations of "The Creation," one of which was very outstanding.

An Arts and Crafts exhibit which included original creations in hats, ceramics, crocheting, embroidering, etc., was fascinating to all who saw it. A fashion show also added a note of appreciation for lovely things.

Activities for diversion at the Convention included a reception by the church women of Detroit, tours of the city, elaborate garden parties, luncheons, a banquet and tours of convalescent homes.

Since complete coverage of the Convention is difficult your questions will be answered if possible. If I fail to do so surely you may count on the kind people who accompanied me on the trip to do their best. Thank you again for your confidence in me which allowed me to represent you at the N.A.C.W.C.

Your President
