

Holidays Make an Excellent Time for Training of Cooks

Little girls are born homemakers and love to imitate their mothers in the kitchen. Many successful cooks had their start standing on a box or chair at the kitchen table or cabinet helping with the stirring.

With the holiday season quickly approaching, why not let your little girl try some easy recipes of which she will be proud. There are many quick and easy dishes that she can prepare for her own little party.

Mickey Mouse Salad

- Canned pears
- Lettuce
- Raisins
- Maraschino cherries
- Pecans

Wash a lettuce leaf well and shake off water. Lay it on a plate. Lay half a pear on lettuce leaf, round side up. Cut a marachino cherry into quarters and lay one of these pieces against the small end of the pear. Then put in two raisin eyes and two pecan ears to finish Mickey Mouse's face.

Hot Fudge Sauce

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 4 tablespoons cocoa
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- Dash of salt
- 1 cup hot water
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Put the sugar, cocoa, cornstarch and a dash of salt into a saucepan and mix well. Stir in hot water, then add vanilla.

Put saucepan over a small flame and cook fudge sauce until it is thick, stirring all the while.

This fudge sauce can be poured hot over ice cream to make hot fudge sundaes. Or you can store it in refrigerator in a covered jar and use it cold for sundaes, milk shakes, or poured over cake.

MASONIC — SUN., MON., TUES.

The vicious and enormous reptile of the wastelands prowls the twisted wreckage of a tumbled streamliner after snatching it from a trestle in a suspense-choked scene from "The Giant Gila Monster."

News For Veterans

World War II veterans have an approaching deadline in 1960 which marks the end of their GI loan privilege, Veterans Administration said.

July 25, 1960, less than 10 months from now, is the cut-off date for veterans of World War II in making applications for GI loans.

VA said if the application is made before that date, the veteran still will have one year more, or until July 25, 1961, to have the loan deal completed.

Korean veterans have considerably longer before their GI loan rights expire. Their deadline for application does not come until 1965.

VA said Korean veterans have also an important deadline affecting their GI training rights and each Korean veteran has a different deadline. For each one the final deadline comes eight years from the time of his discharge.

This is a final cut-off effecting training rights, VA pointed out. A veteran must actually complete his GI training or education by that time, since no further training can be authorized after the individual's cut-off date.

Korean veterans also have a deadline for commencing their GI training, which is three years from the date they were discharged from active service.

VA said full information on these cut-off dates and details of all GI benefits may be obtained from any Veterans Administration office.
