Tips From New Bern's Post Office

What's Your Postal I. Q. ?

AGENTS WHO OBTAIN AUTO LICENSES OR PERMITS FOR OTHERS VIOLATE MONOPOLY OF MAIL LAW UNLESS POSTAGE IS PAID ON EACH APPLICATION

RIGHT / WRONG

OH, NO SIR! YOU CAN'T SEND THE APPLICATIONS FOR YOUR WHOLE FAMILY IN ONE ENVELOPE!

LICENSE REGISTRATIONS

1. RIGHT.—Applications for automobile, drivers, and other licenses are letters when sent for the purpose of obtaining a license. The application of each individual or company constitutes a separate letter. Applications of various persons may not be mailed in one package by a compensated representative of the applicants unless the package is endorsed on the outside to show the number of applications enclosed and enough postage is paid to cover the first-class rate on each application. Agents of the licensing authority may receive applications and forward them to any other office in a package with postage paid at the first-class rate computed on the bulk weight of the package.

If an agent carries the applications outside of the mail, applications must be placed in a sealed envelope bearing the appropriate amount of postage. If postage is in the form of stamps, they must be canceled with ink by the sender. The sender must write the date of the letter on the envelope, or the person carrying it must write on the envelope the date he received the letter. The name and address of the person for whom the letter is intended must be written on the envelope.

What's Cooking

If you happen to be one of those fortunate New Bernians who don't have to worry about calories, we heartily recommend baked lemon pudding for your next dessert. It is easy to prepare, the day before serving, and is at its best when topped off with scoops of ice cream or whipped cream.

For the filling, you'll need one cup of sugar; two tablespoons of corn starch; one-half teaspoon of salt; one cup of cold water; two eggs, beaten; one-fourth cup of butter or margarine; one-half cup of fresh lemon juice.

Combine the sugar, corn starch, and salt in a saucepan. Add water gradually, and cook over direct heat until thickened. Stir about half of the hot mixture into the beaten eggs, and stir back into pan. Cook one minute longer. Remove from heat. Add butter and lemon juice. Pour into a crumb-lined baking dish.

For the crumb topping, mix together one and a half cups of crushed corn flakes, one cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of melted butter, one cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of soda, and one cup of shredded coconut. Pour two-thirds of the mixture into a 9-inch square greased pan. Pour in lemon filling. Sprinkle remaining mixture on top and bake at 350 degrees for 20 or 25 minutes. Cut in squares when you serve it, either hot or cold.

Needless to say, we don't advise this dessert for folks who are on a diet. Speaking from experience, one of the annoying things about being overweight is the anguish of seeing skinny people eat sweets and starches to their heart's content without adding so much as a single ounce to their lean figures.

Admittedly, most of us who are fat eat entirely too much. However, you don't have to roam far to find thin people who also have big appetites. Whatever your own peculiar characteristics might be, baked lemon pudding is good eating, even if it isn't good for you.

Never argue at the dinner table. The one who isn't hungry always gets the best of the argument.

THANKS

I appreciate the fact that I am unopposed for Judge of Craven Recorder's Court.

In the past, when I served citizens of Craven County in this same capacity, I accepted the solemn responsibility with the prayerful determination to justify your confidence.

To the limit of my ability, and in good conscience, I will continue to keep the faith.
