

Buds AND Blossoms

By
MAMIE MILLER

Everything was so dry that nothing grew, not even the grass. Now the rain has come, and no one can stay up with the grass cutting. Crab grass can be kept down by using methyl arsonate, D. M. A. or A. M. A. on it. Keep this away from pets and children.

The best way to prevent crab grass from starting in your lawn is to keep your lawn well seeded and properly growing all season. There'll be less room for unwanted grass.

Spray all rose bushes to insure continuous blooming. See that the bushes are well mulched. You'll be richly rewarded for the money, time and labor you devote to this cause.

If thrips, red spiders, mites, leaf hoppers, Japanese beetles, lace bugs, rose beetles, chiggers or white fleas bother you, use Ortho Isotox garden spray. Use it according to directions on the bottle.

Use Weedone to kill weeds in lawns, flower beds, shrubs, and unwanted trees. Get this at your local seed counter.

It isn't too late to plant cushion mums. They are so pretty in late summer. They come in all colors. These will multiply quickly, so don't get too many of one color. Divide them next season.

There is a new non-poisonous, non-chemical natural insect killer. It is not dangerous to humans, birds, plants, flowers, animals and fish. It is Biotrol, which can be purchased at seed stores.

This week, for our Buds and Blossoms poem, we have selected "The Rainy Morning" by James Whitcomb Riley.

The dawn of the day was dreary,
And the lowering clouds o'er-head

Wept in a silent sorrow
Where the sweet sunshine lay dead;

And a wind came out of the eastward

"TAMMY AND THE DOCTOR" (1-B)

A pensive "Tammy" looks out on the world from the viewpoint of her "backwoodsie upbringing". In the new picture called "Tammy and the Doctor" she works her simple charms on a young doctor (played by Peter Fonda). And Tammy of course is Sandra Dee.

Like an endless sigh of pain,
And the leaves fell down in the pathway
And writhed in the falling rain.

I had tried in a brave endeavor
To chord my harp with the sun,
But the strings would slacken ever,
And the task was a weary one:

And so, like a child impatient
And sick of a discontent,
I bowed in a tower of tear-drops
And mourned with the instrument.

And lo! as I bowed, the splendor
Of the sun bent over me,
With a touch as warm and tender
As a father's hand might be:
And, even as I felt its presence,
My clouded soul grew bright,
And the tears, like the rain of morning,
Melted in mists of light.

Progress is the activity of today and the assurance of tomorrow.--Emerson
