It's Time To Change Things

A major weakness in our governing bodies, on the state and national levels, is a lack of communication between elected officials and citizens.

Whatever his ability may be, no public servant can represent you in the proper manner if he fails to keep his finger on the pulse of the people.

Rudyard Kipling called it the common touch. To achieve awareness, those who seek and assume office must communicate regularly and often.

Touring from place to place, during the few short weeks of a political campaign, isn't enough. The man you elect should be a familiar figure.

Familiar to the extent that all during the year he'll come calling down your way, and listen to what's on your mind. This is how it should be.

Elected officials don't learn a great deal from a distance. They are apt to mistake the demands of a few for the wishes of the majority.

There is less chance of this happening, when you make the most of every opportunity to talk face to face with citizens in all walks of life.

Some folks aren't good at writing letters, and even if they are they may not get around to it. Talking things over is communication at its best.

When you elect me to the State Senate, from Carteret, Craven and Pamlico counties, I will visit with you often, as I have been doing for many years.

When a man is elevated to public office in a free election, it is achieved through the wishes of a majority. He should never forget this.

As your voice in the State Senate, I will on all occasions determine the desires of this majority, and vote its best interests.

This you deserve, and this you'll get as long as I serve you in the General Assembly. Together we can do much for our three coastal counties.
