Mr. and Mrs. George Kilpatrick, Sr., were honored by their children on Saturday night at the Holiday Inn in Kinston, N.C. A dinner was served in honor of their "Golden Wedding Anniversary."

Four generations attended, several relatives, and a few friends.

Rev. and Mrs. Isaac Dancy were among the guests, and they made it known to the group that they had reached their Golden Wedding Anniversary also.

A reception honoring Governor James B. Hunt, Jr., was held on Thursday evening at the H.J. MacDonald School in New Bern, N.C.

It was well attended with people from Craven, Jones and Pamlico counties.

The governor was quite at ease as he stood in the receiving line to greet the supporting democrats. Soon the time passed and Governor Hunt approached the platform to talk about some things that need attention as he seeks a seat in the U.S. Senate. First he stated that "I believe in an America that can prosper."

- (1) He states "that jobs are needed"
- (2) Huge deficits caused our economy to fall. (High interest rates add to problems)
- (3) Think of teachers and better schools. He also said that he has seen the National test scores have been higher and drop outs are less since he has been governor.

Governor Hunt says that it is his desire to work for all people including the senior citizens. He even mentioned that one senior citizen told him that she was in her eighties Thursday night.

The Moore's Chapel A.M.E. Zion Church of LaGrange had as guest on Sunday afternoon the Elizabeth City State University's Gospel Choir in concert. The choir sang many beautiful selections with several numbers especially related to Black History.

The young people thanks the people for inviting them and asked for continued support.

Visitors from many surrounding areas attended. Mrs. Eva M. Hawkins of Kinston, N.C. Mrs. B.H. Mitchell and Mr. John Z. Smith of Ft. Barnwell were among those in attendance.
