

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Sigma Lambda's Stage an "Information, Please"

On Friday morning the Sigma Lambda Literary Society had charge of the assembly program. The program was an imitation of the popular radio program, "Information, Please." Peggy Hopkins acted as mistress of ceremonies, Martha Lewis and Mary Shepherd Quintard were the judges, and Teeny Montgomery was scorekeeper.

The five contestants, picked from the audience, were Sally Wright, Miss Tucker, Mary Connally Coxe, Marianna Hancock, and Corinne Williams. Each contestant received a prize, and Mary Connally, the winner, received a box of candy.

Among the high points of the affair were Sally Wright's long deliberation as to who played in the Rose Bowl, the burst of applause that greeted Marianna's long-awaited answer as to what was counted by calories, and Marianna's statement that North Carolina was the last state admitted into the Union.

Next week the Doctors' Daughters' Club will be in charge of the program.

CAMPUS NOTES

At the suggestion of Mrs. Cruikshank, new regulations have been put into operation regarding order in the art building and in the library. Complete silence is to be maintained in the halls of the art building at all times, and it was suggested that students plan their work so that they may enter and leave the library at the time the bell rings. Mrs. Cruikshank said, too, that plans were being made to have more room in the library.

The end of exams was a time for relaxation and celebration. On Saturday night, January 28, a nickel-odan and amplifying system were installed in the gym and the resident students took their dates down to dance. Those girls not having dates were allowed to "break." Not only the girls and their dates, but also various members of the faculty agree that the Circle made a success of this elaboration on the date night.

Mr. Mark Orr, a graduate student in foreign relations at the University of North Carolina and Assistant Secretary of the Southern Council of International Relations, visited Saint Mary's on Sunday night, February 5. After supper he discussed the Conference recently attended in Lima, Peru, by twenty-one American Republics. Mr. Orr, having studied comparatively first-hand information, believed that German, Italian, and Japanese influences in South America have been overemphasized. He traced briefly the history and accomplishments of former conferences, and showed that a vital and direct result of the Lima Conference was the establishment of the most friendly relations ever known to exist between the Pan-American countries and the United States.

In the newly redecorated Playmaker's Theatre about twenty-five Saint Mary's students, chaperoned by Miss Goss, watched a varied program of the dance last Tuesday night. The performers were Miriam Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simons, two of the most promising of young modern dancers. After the program's conclusion, the girls went backstage to meet Miss Winslow to whom Miss Goss had a letter of introduction. Also among the high spots of the evening was Dot See's conversation with Mr. Fitz-Simons. It seems that Dot lives two doors from the Fitz-Simons in Atlanta and learned to swim with "Foster."

On Friday, January 27, the Saint Mary's librarians were joint hostesses with the librarians of Meredith College, Hugh Morson High School, and Needham Broughton High School at the annual dinner given for the librarians of Raleigh (and several guests from the University of North Carolina). Miss Horn, accompanied by Miss Scott, sang several selections at the dinner.

GYM NOTES

Monday night, March 6, is the date set for the gym demonstration. Plans for this demonstration are being discussed and arranged in the various gym classes.

Basketball practice is well under way now and some of the girls even go to the gym on Saturday and Sunday nights for extra games.

The tumbling class, much to everyone's delight, is becoming larger with each meeting of the class.

Because the voting results were so close, a new election had to be held for the May Queen. The student body was asked to vote between Margaret Taylor, Martha Anne Speight, and Merrie Haynes, who received the greatest number of votes in the previous election.
