ASSEMBLY PROGRAMS

The Doctors' Daughters' Club had charge of the assembly program on Friday, February 10. It was an "information" program, made up of questions which might be asked by visitors at Commencement time. The members of the club took part as visitors, and Sue Harwood was at the Information Booth. She asked the audience the questions and gave the answers they could not. Among the interesting questions asked were, "How long have chapel caps been worn at Saint Mary's?" (seventeen years); "Who was Andromeda?" (Mr. Moore's old car); and "What is the name of the dining hall?" (Clement Hall).

On Wednesday morning, February 15, Mrs. Cruikshank conducted a quiz intended to show to what extent the student body had acquired from their education the traits which, according to the quiz, should have been developed. Among the things on which the student was asked to judge herself were: powers of concentration, extent of creative ability, and appreciation of beauty in Art and Nature.

In assembly last Friday, the E. A. P. literary society presented a program of literary charades, in which the audience was requested by Helen Holt to name the title of the book acted out by members of the society. Some of the students showed their knowledge to a marked degree, others, their lack of it. Among the cleverly portrayed titles were James Fenimore Cooper's The Last of the Mohicans, Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer, and Jack London's Call of the Wild.

NEW MEMBERS ADMITTED TO THE LITERARY SOCIETIES

Five girls have recently been chosen, because of their outstanding ability and originality in writing, to become members of the Epsilon Alpha Pi and Sigma Lambda literary societies. We wish to congratulate Virginia Manning, Mary Watson Prince, and Anne Seeley, the new E. A. P.'s, and Susan Baker and Evelyn Peck, the Sigma Lambda's new members. Each society now numbers twenty-two, and although the poetry contest is over, these girls will have opportunities to contribute Essay and Short Story competition. With equal numbers and additional talent, the societies' competition for the cup will be keener than ever. We will all be watching to see who wins.

GYM NOTES

The following girls have been chosen as the Sigma and Mu basketball squads. The first teams will be taken from these girls. Sigma: Helen Montgomery, Mallie White, Virginia L. Wooten, Laura Gordon, Elizabeth

Posture week, February 20-25, is proving not only how straight Saint Mary's girls can hold themselves, but how much better they look when they do it. Posture "police," along with the faculty, have watched all week for slumping figures. Each student was given a tag which has been checked every time she has been caught slumping. At the end of the week, the team having the smallest number of cheeks will win. The following girls, taken from those who made "A" on their physical examinations, were the posture "police":

LENTEN SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED

The complete list of guest speakers for the services during Lent has been announced: on March 1, the Rev. Craighill Brown, Southern Pines; March 8, the Rev. Albert Stuart, St. Michael's, Charleston, S. C.; March 22, the Very Rev. Elwood Haines, Dean of the Cathedral at Louisville, Ky.; March 29, the Rev. Reginald Mallott, Baltimore, Md.; April 15, the Rev. Dave Yates, from Durham, N. C.

THE UNDERCLASSMAN DANCE

Curled heads, polished nails and fragrant corsages—all these things and more were brought to perfection at the Underclassmen Dance last Saturday night. Toes tripped and hoops swayed to the tunes of Paul Moore and his N. C. State Collegians; which reminds me, did anybody miss seeing Kiki Long's red velvet dream with its hoop skirt? They tell us none of the boys did. And did you know we have a "Two Million Dollar Baby" in our midst. Gillam was enjoyed by all, thanks to our helpful sponsor. "Old Man Mose" and "Deep Purple" won our applause, and speaking of purple, what about Honey Peck's orchid-colored dress! Thanks to our charming Presidents for helping to put over the first Underclassmen Dance!
