> Saint Mary's Again Has Capacity Enrollment. Engineering and Medical Schools Exception to Decrease

Raymond Walters, President of the University of Cincinnati, reveals in the New York Times of October 11, 1942, that there is a sharp decrease of enrollment at American colleges this year, the heaviest toll being in university law schools and graduate schools of arts and sciences because of the age-group factor and Selective Service. He notes that "official estimates from 451 representative universities, colleges, and technical schools all over the United States show that a large majority have decreases of 5 to 58 per cent in full-time students." Enrollments of a year ago were nearly 10 per cent below those in 1940 .
"About two-thirds of the nation's colleges of arts and sciences now have reduced enrollments." Engiheering schools and medical colleges are exceptions to the decrease of entrants because the training offered at the ese schools is of vital importance in the war effort.
Reports from seventy-three women's colleges show eight with an increase of enrollment, twenty-five hearly the same as last fall, and forty with a decrease. Some which had increases or no change were Agnes Scott, Hollins, Radeliffe, Randolph-Mcott, Hocon Women's College, Sarah Lawrence, Smith, Sweet Briar, Vassar, Wellesley, and Woman's College of the UViversity of North Carolina. Decreases were in Alabama College for Women, Geor-
tia State Woman's College, and gia State Wom Mount Holyoke.
Saint Mary's again has a capacity enrollment, a condition which has existed for the past five years. In fact, the school has more resident students this year than it ever has had before fore, 231.
