

Dramatic Group To Present 'Twelfth Night'

School Journalists Revive NCCPA

Outstanding Newspapermen, Daniels, Houston, Featured

North Carolina Collegiate Press Association got into full swing again after several years inactivity during the war, at its Reactivation Convention at the Carolina Hotel, Raleigh, May 9 and 10. Highlighting the program were addresses by R. Gregg Cherry, Governor of North Carolina; Josephus Daniels, editor and publisher, News and Observer; Noel Houston, author; Ed Kirk, news director, WPTF; and Warren Duffly, director, Raleigh Bureau of the United Press.

Activities
The day and a half's activities included panel discussions, luncheon at State College, and a banquet and informal dance at the Carolina Hotel ballroom.

(From P. 1, Col. 4)
lish Department. Monogram girls, chosen by the faculty, will be announced by Dr. Stone.
A Glee Club and piano recital, under direction of Miss Geraldine Cate, will be presented Saturday evening at 8:30.

Early Communion for the seniors will be celebrated Sunday morning, June 1, at 8:00 o'clock.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be given by the Rev. Robert L. Crandall, Charlotte, at 11:00 Sunday morning. Rector of Saint Peter's Church, Charlotte, Mr. Crandall will speak on "Exporting Spiritual Capital."

An organ recital and an alumnae service will be held at 5:00 at the school chapel, succeeded by step singing of each of the classes at 6:30.

The first of the graduation exercises will start in the auditorium at 10:30 Monday morning, with Dr. Francis R. B. Godolphin, Dean of the College, Princeton University, as guest speaker.

The Niles and Cooper medals will be awarded to the students with the highest average in the college and high school departments by Dr. Stone, who will also announce honor roll and honorable mention students for the year. Later, high school and business diplomas and art, expression, piano, and organ certificates will be presented.

In the chapel seniors will be given diplomas by the Rt. Rev. Edwin Penick, retired bishop of the Eastern Diocese of North Carolina.

Students and faculty will then line

In a city in Llyria, and the seacoast near it, Shakespeare's romantic comedy, Twelfth Night, will be brought to life in its full glory tonight at 8:15 on the campus outside the auditorium. Directed by Miss Florence C. Davis, the production is the annual recital of the dramatic department.

Outstanding in the cast of the play are Elizabeth Myatt, Goldsboro, who will play Orsino, Duke of Illyria; Violet LaRue, Raleigh, Olivia, a lady of fortune; Susan Jenkins, Goldsboro, Malvolio, steward to Olivia; and Virginia Smith, Ridley Park, Pa., Viola.

NEW INVENTION?

When one girl broke her alarm clock, she was afraid to take an afternoon nap for fear she wouldn't wake up in time for supper. Seeing no one on her hall who could wake her at the proper time, she arranged with a boy at State to telephone her at five o'clock. Her reason was simple. When someone came to call her to the phone, she would be waked up.

HOSE-RUNNING

Do your stockings run when you walk? If so, take those useless hose to Mrs. Callahan's office and put them in the box provided there for them. Before long they will reappear in the form of handy stocking rugs. Thanks!

in front of the school for the dropping of the handkerchief by chief marshal, Betsy Evans, Enfield, officially ending school for the year.

Sebastian, Viola's brother, will be played by Frances Collett, Morganton; Antonia, a sea captain, Preston Wescoat, Moorestown, N. J.; a sea captain and friend of Viola's, Mary Kittrell, Pinetops; Valentine, a gentleman attending the Duke, Lucille Best; and Sir Toby Belch, Olivia's uncle, Noel Gibbs, Engelhard.

Sir Andrew Aquecheck will be played by Logan Vaught, Winston-Salem; Feste, a clown, Betty Lou Rowland, Willow Springs; Friar, Lenoir Williams, Dunn; an officer, Betty Clarke, Manning, S. C.; Maria, Olivia's waiting woman, Ann Wicker, Tarboro.

Olivia's ladies in waiting will be Nellie Truslow, Chestertown, Md.; Fannie Mae Hudson, Shelby; and Vivian Scott, Farmville; while Betty Byrnes, Charlotte, and Janie Nance, Raleigh, are gentlemen in waiting for the Duke. The pages will be Harriett Barnwell, Columbia, S. C., and Willie Marjorie Reddick, Scotland Neck.

Shipwrecked on the coast of Illyria and presuming her twin brother drowned, Viola poses as a page for the Duke, Orsino, with whom she falls in love. The Duke, however, desperately loves Olivia, who is in mourning and will have nothing to do with him. Viola serves as the interpreter of the Duke's love for Olivia and soon finds herself involved in the intrigues of Olivia's relations and servants. To crown all events, Olivia falls in love with Viola, much to the page's discomfort.

Matters become more complicated, as Sebastian, Viola's twin brother, comes to town, and is mistaken for her. After much confusion, trials, and tribulation, the plot unravels with Viola and Sebastian discovered as twins. Orsino realizes he is really in love with Viola and the happy couple walk gaily off with the already married Olivia and Sebastian.

Twelfth Night is directed by Miss Florence C. Davis, assisted by Virginia Bonnett, Miami, Fla. Miss Davis, Dean of Girls, for many years has cast and directed all plays given by the students, several productions of which have won first place at the Chapel Hill Dramatic Festival.

Betsy Blunden, Charleston, W. Va., and Nancy Cumming, Augusta, Ga., are the sound engineers.

Joan Hassler, Thomasville, is stage manager. In charge of settings are Gene Rose, Henderson; Anne Harmon, McBee, S. C.; Martha Hinkle, Winston-Salem; and Margaret Anne Houck, Roanoke, Va.

The property committee is Margaret Anderson, Cheraw, S. C.; Jacqueline Burke, Baltimore, Md.; Pat Taylor, Columbia, S. C.; and Beth Toy, New Brunswick, N. J.

Aurelia Fulton, Walnut Cove, and Dot Leak, Wadesboro, are in charge of costumes.

(See P. 6, Col. 1)

Pictured above is a group of day students who will receive their high school diplomas Monday. Those graduating are Ann Coley, Nancy Lee Duckett, Josephine Cusick, Betty Debnam, Anne Dewey Heartt, Jerry Ann Quinn, Eleanor Tucker and Glenn Harding.