This summer Marilyn plans to attend summer school at the University of Hawaii.

Also at a recent meeting of the rising senior class, Eleanor Stowe was elected Secretary of the Legislative Body. Eleanor is a new girl from Charlotte, North Carolina. She is a member of the Young Democrat's Club on the Alter Guild, and serves as a junior representative to the Legislature Body this year. ## Legislative Body Makes Changes

This year the Legislative Body considered fourteen petitions. The petition to allow sophomores to single date after first quarter was the only one which passed. Numerous Constitution changes were made. The two most important changes concerned the Honor Council membership and the Disciplinary Committee. The Constitution now states that the Commercial Class will no longer have a representative on the Honor Council but will join the junior class in voting for three Honor Council representatives. The Disciplinary Committee was divided into two bodies: the Disciplinary Committee, which issues penalties in cases referred to it by the Honor Council and deals with serious violations of student regulations and of rules of personal conduct; and the Minor Offense Committee, which issues penalties for offenses which are not under the jurisdiction of the Disciplinary Committee and deals with library offenses. This division was made in order to strengthen the Disciplinary Committee so that it may deal with cases referred to it by the Honor Council.

In order for a petition to be passed, it must first be written on a special form, signed by three members of the student body, and given to the Secretary of the Legislative Body. The Petitions Committee then considers it and either rejects it or recommends it to the Legislative Body which votes on it. If the Legislative Body votes for the petition, the Chairman and the Dean of Students present the petition to the President of the College. If the petition gains his approval, it goes into effect at the end of two months. This two-month lapse is required so that proposed petitions will be well thought out and will have lasting value.

RECOGNITION

In the turmoil of staff change-over, we should take time to give well-deserved recognition to Sally Stevens, editor; Elizabeth Lackey, assistant editor; and the 1962-1963 BELLES staff. Their endless hours of hard work have succeeded in giving St. Mary's an intellectually broadening and entertaining paper.
